The Steamship Missouri Docked at Philadelphia,

WITH THE DANMARK'S PASSENGERS.

Statement of Captain Murrill, of the Rescuing Vessel.

A Child Born on the Way to America—The Immigrants Praise the Noble Conduct of Their Rescuer—They Start for the West.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—The steamship Missouri, with 365 people from the wrecked steamer Danmark, arrived at the American line company's dock this evening. All of the Danmark's passengers look hearty and bright, and show no signs of the hardships which they must have necessarily endured. The general passenger agent of the Thingvalla line stated that all would be forwarded to their destination from this city, if satisfactory arrangements could be made. Nearly all the immigrants are bound for points in the West.

Capt. Hamilton Murrill, commander, furnishes the following statement:

We left London with a general cargo for the first trip to Philadelphia March 28th. On April 5th we sighted the steamer Danmark, flying a signal of distress. We bore down on the steamer, and found her disabled. Captain Knudson, her commander, reported that the tail end of his shaft was broken, and he wished me to take the passengers to New York. Owing to the state of the weather, I was not prepared to accommodate such a number of people. I declined to accede to his request, but offered instead to tow his vessel to the nearest port. This offer Captain Knudson accepted.

The vessel proceeded slowly, heading northwest for St. Johns, N. F., which was considered to be the nearest port to make under the circumstances. The wind blew with tremendous force all night, and progress was most difficult.

April 6, at 1:30 A. M., finding I could make no headway in a westerly direction, and seeing ice to windward, I decided to abandon my hope of reaching St. Johns, and determined to make for the Azores Islands. I signaled my determination to the captain of the Danmark, and he agreed that this was the best course to pursue.

At 7 A. M. the Danmark signaled "We are leaking considerably. There is now three feet of water in the aft hold, and it is gaining rapidly."

I asked what I should do, and the signal came, "Keep on towing."

Two hours later the Danmark again signaled that the "Danmark is sinking. We must abandon the ship. Will you take the passengers?"

Without a moment's hesitation I signaled back, "Yes, I will take all on board and do the best I can."

I then cut the tow-line, and we dropped down to the Danmark. A chief officer of that vessel came on board the Missouri, and informed me of the condition of his ship. He said Captain Knudson had decided that, for the best interests of those on the ship, it would be better to abandon her and bring all the people on board the Missouri while there was plenty of time.

A heavy sea was running during all of this terrible day, making the work of removing the people from the sinking ship one of great difficulty, and it was only by the hardest kind of work that we were able to avoid accidents, both to the people and to the boats. The women and children were removed first, and after them the male passengers and crew. At 2 P. M. we finished the work of transferring the passengers. It consumed nearly five hours in getting everybody, with the exception of the officers, safely on the Missouri without a single accident of any kind.

An hour later the barometer began falling and I sent word to Captain Knudson and his officers to leave the ship and come on board the Missouri, and after getting some provisions from the Danmark, which had now settled very perceptibly in the water, that vessel was finally abandoned, Captain Knudson being the last to leave the ship.

I then counted heads and found that we had, in addition to our own crew of forty-five men and four passengers, 665 cabin and steerage passengers and sixty-nine officers and crew of the ill-fated steamer. Our last view of the Danmark showed the vessel to be rapidly going down, her stern being almost even with the sea, and the water breaking over her.

We threw overboard most of our cargo on the decks, consisting principally of bales of rags, in order to make room for the accommodation of so large an addition to our passenger list. On looking over our provisions we found, after a careful estimate of the number of mouths to feed, that we only had enough food on board to last three days, and I decided to make all possible haste to reach the port of St. Michael, which was 720 miles away.

On April 7, at 1:30 A. M., about ten hours after the transfer was made, Mrs. Linney, aged 18 years, a Danish woman, who was on the way to America to meet her husband, gave birth to a girl in my cabin. The little stranger was christened Atlanta Missouri. The child was born during a howling storm, which rocked the vessel and caused the sea to break over us.

We had started for St. Michael's, with all on board, at 5 P. M. on the 6th. The weather was very threatening at the time, and the wind increased in violence as the night wore on. Everything possible was done to make the passengers comfortable. Awnings and sails were brought out and used as a partial protection to the panic-stricken emigrants.

The gale kept increasing in fury, and there was a tremendous sea running, which was continually breaking over the vessel, and taken altogether things looked dubious. It must be remembered that we were very short of provisions, and this storm at the very outset of our journey towards St. Michael's, made us fearful of reaching that port safely.

By daylight of April 8, however, the gale had materially decreased, and we were able to make fair progress, and on April 10 we arrived at St. Michael's. April 11 we landed 370 of the passengers and crew of the Danmark, including Captain Knudson, at St. Michael's.

On Wednesday we sailed from St. Michael's with 360 people from the Danmark, including eight of the crew of that vessel. We had fine weather all the way to Philadelphia, and a remarkably small amount of sickness on board, considering the crowded condition of our boats.

HAMILTON MURRILL.

THE HERO OF THE DAY.

Captain Murrill Beloved by the Hundreds Whom He Rescued.

There was never a jollier tar aboard a ship than Captain Hamilton Murrill, of the Missouri, appeared to be to-day. He was the lion of the day indeed. Notwithstanding all the excitement and bother incident to so great a responsibility as he has had upon his shoulders for the past sixteen days, he was the same affable, big-hearted mariner, who had a kind word for everybody and whose modesty never for once forsook him.

The steamer picked up on her way up the channel several tug loads, representatives of the Thingvalla line, of Peter Wright & Sons, agents, and of the leading newspapers of the country.

Everybody was hurrying to and fro, getting what little of their possessions they had been able to save from the sinking steamer, and all displayed upon their faces every sign of joy at reaching terra firma sound and well. All of them had the same story to tell with reference to their treatment on both boats, the Danmark and the Missouri, and all were unstinting in their praise of the care and chivalry displayed, which to their minds, made up largely for the enforced delay in their voyage.

From early morning crowds began to gather at the piers along the river front below where she landed her human cargo, and when the vessel reached the first of these docks she was saluted in every possible way, always answering with her heavy and sonorous whistle.

When the boat finally touched at her pier, the work of disembarking was easy and fast, and directly from the ship the passengers were conducted to a well-laden table, fully 250 feet in length, which they had not looked for, but to which they were made fully welcome.

Just before arriving at the pier a florist's agent boarded the ship, and searching out Captain Murrill, gave him, on behalf of several prominent citizens, a handsome floral ship, the hull and rigging being composed of bunches of evergreens and trimmed with silver sails. The floral tribute to his bravery and humanity was an excellent specimen of the art of floral design, and was admired by everybody who was fortunate enough to catch a glimpse of it.

OFF FOR THE WEST.

At 11 o'clock to-night a special train on the Pennsylvania railroad took nearly 300 of the passengers towards their destination in the West and Northwest. The remaining thirty-five, or thereabouts, who were destined for points in the East, also left to-night over the railroad lines.

The majority of those bound West are going to Minnesota, Dakota and other points in that section, while a few go as far as Washington territory. They will be accompanied by the agents of the Thingvalla line, and will be reprovisioned at Chicago.

The final leave-taking between Captain Murrill and the passengers of the Danmark was affecting. For all of those who grasped his hand the master had a smile and a kind word of well wishing.

Captain Murrill could not state the value of the cargo which had been thrown overboard. The entire cargo was valued at $150,000, but only a portion of it was thrown overboard.

"Although," said the captain, "had it been necessary, I would have thrown every pound of our cargo overboard. That which was jettisoned consisted principally of bales of rag waste and other light but bulky stuff stored beneath the decks."

THE "IMMIGRANT FUND."

Secretary Windom Authorizes Its Use for the Danmark's Passengers.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Secretary Windom authorized the commissioner of immigration at Philadelphia to-day, to use the immigrant fund in meeting all proper expenses in giving relief to destitute immigrant passengers of the wrecked steamer Danmark, brought to Philadelphia on the steamer Missouri.

THE UNION PACIFIC REPORT.

The Relations of That Road With the Oregon Short Line.

BOSTON, April 22.—In the Union Pacific report the history of the Oregon Short Line is given and the terms of the contract of 1882 governing the relations of the two companies.

One of the provisions of this, the directors found last year, has never been fulfilled, that which apportioned the earnings from the joint traffic on the basis of straight mileage. Variation from the contract has never been demanded by the Short Line nor authoritatively provided by the Union Pacific.

Division on the basis of the contract shows that on May 31 last the Short Line owed the Union Pacific considerably more than $2,000,000 instead of $1,[illegible], as shown by the books of the company.

The Short Line directors in July asked for the rescission of the contract of 1882. The referees appointed in November reported, practically confirming the division of the earnings which had been in operation.

At the annual meeting the stockholders of the Union Pacific are to be asked to ratify the agreement between the companies on this basis.

As the government does not allow the Union Pacific to construct branches a number of these lines have been constructed by separate companies which the road controls. These companies are cumbersome. The directors, therefore, recommended that the Oregon Short Line, Utah Northern, Utah Central, Salt Lake & Western, Utah & Nevada, and Ogden & Syracuse be merged into one.

EFFECT ON THE STOCK MARKET.

A Heavy Drop in Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The stock market to-day was dull but generally firm and slightly higher than Saturday's closing prices in all but a few shares. The unfavorable statement of the Union Pacific of its business for the past year caused a drop of over 4 per cent. The market opened ⅛@⅜ higher than Saturday's close and the subsequent movements were very irregular. The close was quiet but fairly steady. The important losses were 5¾ in Short Line and 1½ in Union Pacific.

Government bonds have been strong but dull.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

President Harrison's Solution Meets the Approval of Southern Republicans.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Harrison yesterday received a delegation of Southern republicans, among the number being several well-known colored men. The delegation expressed entire approval of the president's solution of the Southern problem, and told him that his policy of appointing white men to fill offices in white districts, recognizing colored voters as far as possible through the North and those located in the South by getting them positions in executive departments here, instead of placing them where they would be thrown in contact with those who hate them in Southern sections, was the only true solution there was of the race problem. The president intends to give the colored voters their full measure of recognition in the distribution of offices, but it is proposed to avoid friction in the sections of the South where there has been trouble on account of colored Federal officers, by putting white men in their places. In the heavy black districts of the South where there are competent and popular colored men who are indorsed for appointment, there will be recognition of the colored race. Colored men find no cause for complaint, while all classes of whites are loud in their praise of the new departure.

COMPTROLLER DURHAM RESIGNS.

His Views Not in Line With Those of Secretary Windom.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—First Comptroller Durham severed his connection with the treasury department to-day.

The resignation arose out of the refusal by Durham to allow the bill of John I. Davenport, of New York, for $3000 for extraordinary expenses as election commissioner during the presidential election. This caused an open rupture with the attorney general. These accounts were then taken out of his hands.

Secretary Windom said this afternoon that he had accepted Durham's resignation in the ordinary course of business, not because of any fault with his official conduct, but because of several newspaper articles reflecting upon the administration, which are said to have been inspired by the first comptroller. These attributed sentiments to the first comptroller, which, if true, must have made it unpleasant for him to continue in office under the existing circumstances.

PROHIBITION DEFEATED.

Massachusetts Rejects the Proposed Amendment by a Good Majority.

BOSTON, April 22.—To-day was voting day upon the proposed amendment to the constitution of Massachusetts, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. The day was bright and cool. Both parties have been active in the campaign. The day was a legal holiday, and the exchanges and wholesale business houses were closed. All indications point to the defeat of the amendment.

BOSTON, April 22.—One hundred and fifty eight cities and towns outside of Boston show a total vote on the constitutional amendment as follows: Yes, 43,354; no, 55,328. The amendment is defeated by from 35,000 to 40,000 majority.

DOWNES THE DEFAULTER.

Criminal Proceedings To Be Instituted Against Him, If He Returns From Canada.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The counsel for V. Henry Rothchild and Isaac Dreyfus, partners in the fancy shirt manufacturing firm of Downes & Finch, stated to-day that it was learned that Downes was in Canada. The partners have brought a suit to set aside the firm's assignment.

If Downes returns here, their counsel says, he will have to meet criminal charges. Within one week of the failure over $300,000 in cash and convertible assets were disposed of. Most of the money went to Mrs. Downes, although she does not appear on the firm's books as a creditor. According to the counsel, Downes has defrauded every bank with which he had dealings.

CHILDREN AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Easter Monday Observed With the Time-Honored Custom.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Easter Monday is always children's day at the White House and grounds. To-day the infantile boomers swarmed into the grounds and made their location on the grassy knolls, and proceeded to the joyous occupation of rolling brilliantly dyed Easter eggs. The occupants of the executive mansion frequently appeared at the windows. The band furnished music.

In the afternoon the children abandoned their eggs to go in with the general public and shake hands with the president.

FOR THE COMING CENTENNIAL.

General Butterfield Promises a Procession Thirteen Miles Long.

NEW YORK, April 22.—General Butterfield, marshal of the civic and industrial parade of the Washington centennial, sent a letter to Mayor Grant to-day in which he announces that the parade will probably be thirteen miles long. It is absolutely necessary, he says, that the streets be cleared of all obstructions.

Mayor Grant is asked to co-operate with the police to effect this result.

Investigation by a Secret Order.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 22.—City division No. 1?7 of the Order of Railway Conductors, of this city, yesterday considered the charges brought by C. A. Wheaton, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, against George W. Howard of Los Angeles, Cal., grand chief conductor of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, in being a member of and pushing the interests of the latter organization. Representatives from all parts of the United States were present, and, after a full hearing, acquitted Howard.

A Heavy Defalcation.

DENVER, April 22.—A Durango, Colorado, special to the Republican says: Warrants were issued to-day for the arrest of F. Burgess, the city treasurer, on the charge of being a defaulter in the sum of $12,000. After considerable effort he was induced to turn over to the city a certificate of deposit for $3800, on the promise of release. As soon as he was set at liberty he procured a horse and started toward the New Mexico line.

Officers are now in pursuit.

OKLAHOMA IS OPEN

There Was a Wild Race, But Apparently No Bloodshed.

SOME ARE HAPPY AND SOME ARE NOT

Horsemen Racing Across the Plains in Every Direction.

A CITY SPRINGS UP IN A DAY.

The Town of Guthrie Laid Out in Short Order—A Bank and a Daily Paper Started, and an Election Held—Selfishness Was King.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—Special dispatches from [illegible] say that [illegible] a grand rush across the lines [illegible] States are being paid [illegible] that the [illegible] may [illegible] the choice land first.

[illegible] is as great, if not more, struggling for townsites as for sections. It is said that forty-two townsite companies are going for Guthrie, [illegible] for Oklahoma City, about twenty for Kingfisher, while there are applicants for sites on almost every section. The trouble between the townsite companies promises to be as dangerous as among the claim hunters.

A bold scheme has been concocted. It is evident that there is not room in Oklahoma for all the boomers, so sworn bands have been formed, and those who are left out will make a united rush and occupy the Cherokee strip, hoping to get enough possession of it so that the government will not think it wise to drive them off.

Capitalists of San Francisco have sent an agent, George W. Perkins, to find a site for a town, which they will build and call Frisco. Purcell and his party stood upon the rear platform after leaving Purcell, and just after the Canadian river was crossed they leaped off and entered themselves in the bushes. The chances are the location of Frisco will be near this bridge.

Troops are being as rapidly as possible sent into the country. In its borders there are fourteen companies of infantry and twenty troops of cavalry.

Last night there arrived at Oklahoma City seven men bearing deputy marshal's papers, entitling them to enter the country. One man was aged 70 years. He wore a fine broadcloth suit and carried a gold headed cane. There was not one in the party who ever made an arrest. It is stated that the aggregate capital of the crowd was $20,000,000. Their evident intention is to select a townsite. It is thought there are over thirty "deputies" now in and about Oklahoma, who at noon will turn in their resignations and, after accepting them all by themselves, will become private citizens and then pounce upon claims.

AT ARKANSAS CITY.

Many Got Across the Line Before the Proper Hour.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., April 22.—Comparatively few of the boomers reached the Oklahoma line until last night and this morning. Salt creek, which winds through the strip, and on the banks of which the Ponca reservation is situated, caused the settlers some delay. The rains had made it so high that fording was dangerous, and the men were too hard to venture. Friday morning fully 700 wagons wanted to get across. A woman and two children and numbers of cattle were drowned at the ford.

Captain Hayes sent his troops out to Oklahoma border this morning. A careful estimate by a reporter who was on the border last night, shows that in a radius of five miles from the border entrance on the Ponca trail, fully 500 persons were at least a mile over the line. Wire fences divide the strip from Oklahoma. The men did not know the fence was the dividing line, or if they did, heeded it not. No soldiers were here to dispute their entrance or tell where the line was. A great many people went into Oklahoma as early as Saturday. Cattle men at Red Rock said that as they came through Oklahoma from Galveston they counted a hundred men in the bushes along through Oklahoma.

THE TRAINS CROWDED.

The crowd at the depot was larger than was expected. Three trains with [illegible] coaches each, stood ready for the start. A crowd of people walked up and down on the top of the cars. The moment the doors were thrown open the cars were filled. It is estimated that [illegible] were at the depot awaiting transportation. Before the train started the town was almost deserted. Many women were among the [illegible]. When the first train pulled out, many freight trains had been supplied with seats to follow. At the St. Louis & San Francisco crossing another stop was necessary. The people besieged the first train, but the guards kept them off.

GOING IN BY TRAINLOAD.

The Number Even Greater Than Was Anticipated by the Railroads.

WICHITA, Kan., April 22.—Three trainloads of boomers, numbering 1500, left for Oklahoma this morning over the Santa Fe. A large number left by the Rock Island. Another train has been wired for. Every passenger car of the Santa Fe is in use. A train was made up of cattle cars night before last. The train has reached Guthrie. The number going from all the towns of Southern Kansas is far greater than was anticipated. Many hundreds go down merely to see the scramble, with no idea of remaining. It is believed that the stages at Bold Creek, on the Rock Island, will be totally unable to accommodate the crowds.

CAPITALISTS FOR GUTHRIE.

NEWTON, Kan., April 22.—Three trainloads for Oklahoma left this morning including the capitalists who will open banks and stores in Guthrie.

AN ARMY OF ADVENTURERS.

It Started From Kansas City, and Gathered Recruits Along the Line.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—The Republic's Arkansas City special says: Oklahoma is open. The trials, struggles and sacrifices of years are partially rewarded, but the events of to-day and those of the days, weeks and months to follow, will prove how far the supply is below the demand and necessitate further concessions to avert disorder, bloodshed and other conditions but little short of anarchy. The history of to-day will forever be memorable in frontier annals and will leave behind a heritage of litigation, which will be fruitful to land sharks and claim attorneys, but destruction to the claims of poor and honest settlers.

The Santa Fe began running its sectional trains out of Kansas City last night and picking up cars at almost every station along the route. Hundreds of people were waiting at every depot, and if the cars, all of which were filled before the border line was reached, could all have been coupled, they would have made a train a mile in length.

The crowds were composed of speculators, adventurers, sightseers, thieves, etc. The farming element was not largely represented, as nearly all of the homesteaders have gone on before. There were men in the cars from every great city and important point in the country, and there was no state or territory in the country which did not have its representatives.

The newspaper coach was the first out of Kansas City. It contained representatives of all the leading newspapers in the country, who were compelled to yield room and comfort for the good of the cause.

NEARING THE BORDER.

A Boomer From Seattle Found Riding Beneath the Press Car.

At Arkansas City there were over seventy five coaches tracked in the yards awaiting the rush. All of these were lowered into the yards some distance below the depot. A crowd began gathering on the platform two hours before daylight, and long before the first faint streak of dawn the city was awake and stirring. The streets presented a lively and picturesque appearance. Hundreds, in their impatience to get aboard, rushed down in a mass to the yards and attempted to force their entrance into the cars, all of which were securely locked. The excitement may be judged from the fact that a large number of coach windows were broken in by people who were anxious to secure seats. It was in vain for the officials to say that the trains would run in sections fifteen minutes apart. Every man there wanted to be fifteen minutes ahead of everybody and not fifteen minutes behind anybody.

The first section made up consisted of nine coaches, the newspaper coach and one caboose. It pulled out at 8:45, railroad time, drawn by engine 88. It was 9:30 when the line which marks the state line and the dividing line of the Cherokee strip was reached. It was greeted with a cheer, which rolled from the newspaper in front to the rear of the caboose behind. It marked the departure from the state, [illegible] for a country where government is yet to be created and established. Still the Cherokee country lay between them and the rainbow land.

Along the Pawnee trail the train also passed caravans of boomers' wagons, many going south, but some returning towards Kansas.

Between Willow Springs and the Ponca agency somebody in the newspaper car discovered a man riding on the trucks beneath the coach. When the train stopped at Ponca, the adventurous boomer in the wheels was taken up into the car and elected honorary member of the press association. He gave his name as Harvey Snider and said he was born in [illegible] and had been in this country for nine years and had come all the way from Seattle, W. T., to get a foothold in Oklahoma. He was elected [illegible] representative of the leading [illegible] and was at the head of the new city of Guthrie.

IN OKLAHOMA TERRITORY.

The Trails and Roads Converted Into Race Tracks by the Eager Contestants.

[illegible]

The day was cloudless [illegible] back to the east and to the west clouds of dust rose from the hoofs of hundreds of horses tearing toward different destinations, in most cases the same, and the same goal could be easily distinguished. The riders were apparently evenly mounted, and ran neck and neck for a mile or so along the track, as far as they could be seen, and then eager and intense looks and muscles strained on their horses was some evidence of the prize they were running after.

One saddled steed belonging to [illegible] galloping along the track, its unknown rider [illegible] dent or injury which had befallen the rider. Some [illegible] riding relays.

Out of the dust which arose towards the east could be seen, after the train had reached the summit of a high ridge, a wagon caravan fully two miles in length and which was being [illegible] to the utmost speed of its horses. These wagons were plainly outdistanced by the horseback riders, and after several miles of territory had been traversed it was seen that the best riders were winning the best prizes.

One homesteader, who had secured a magnificent quarter of rolling land, dug a hole two or three feet deep at that corner of it where the surveyor's corner was located, and where he had driven his stakes. Not looking upon the evidence of possession as sufficient to confirm his title, he seized a Winchester as the train ran by, and fired out all of its contents, and then emptied his revolver, yelling like a cowboy or a Comanche Indian all the time. Not only the yells, but the shots were responded to from the train, and a volley went up into the air from the entire length of the section, which proved conclusively how well the party was armed in expectation of what might happen a few miles the other side of the line.

THE EARLY BIRD WAS THERE.

Disappointed Speculators Compelled to Take Second Choice.

The train stopped at the military post, where the white tents of the soldiers and officers [illegible] surrounded by the national colors, were an evidence of power sufficient to maintain order. Troop D, of the Fifth regiment of cavalry of the United States army, was quartered there, and the officers said that at the sound of the bugle at high noon there had been movements among the boomers camped along the border, which had extended across the entire border line, and that the riding had been fast and furious ever since. Some of the prospectors succeeded in reaching Guthrie [illegible] entire [illegible] to locate on the land and secure a prior right to possession, by actual occupancy. The scene was one of the most stirring [illegible] ever witnessed.

The smoke of many campfires, kindled to cook the first meals in Oklahoma, began to ascend in all directions, and before the first train of land speculators reached the future great city of Guthrie the boomers had become possessed of a great deal of the land, and more than one furrow of virgin soil was turned over to the sun, which has made the [illegible] as well as [illegible].

It was 12:20 when the first section of the great Atchison train reached the line, and its progress from that point on to Guthrie was not rapid enough for the rapidity in which it started to get there in a hurry before all the cream was skimmed off the milk. Nevertheless, it lacked but a few minutes of 1 o'clock when the train stopped in front of the Guthrie depot.

Before the train came to a stop it was seen that somebody was already there. In fact, the town was well populated. Tents were numerous on the eastern slope, and stakes were sticking up out of the ground like poles in a bean patch. Men could be seen racing in the direction of valuable holdings, and the scene was as busy and animated as it is possible to imagine.

The profanity among the Arkansas City, Wichita and Kansas City speculators as well as those from other points, was both loud and deep. If there was the prospect of a disturbance at any time to-day it was when these men found themselves baffled at the game of freeze out, but they were compelled to swallow their wrath, for, according to all the technicalities of the law, the men in possession were the rightful owners, and the men who had been left out were the ones who had been the most persistent in their demands for the law's enforcement. There was nothing to do but to take what was left, and it was in the scramble to get these that the most ludicrous scenes of the day were presented.

When the train stopped there was great confusion, the eager speculators falling over each other in the effort to get out of the cars. Every variety of man along the frontier made up the army which charged the land office at the top of the knoll, not in a body, but in detachments. The land office was not the point of their destination, though it stands at the corner of a section, and is, therefore, the present center of the town. The object was to secure lots near to it. There was little left near it. Stakes had already been driven almost to the limit of the half section, 320 acres, allowed for townsite, as the law now stands. There was a small margin and this was soon wiped out by the new comers who had already appropriated nearly everything in sight.

It was but a few minutes until the line was reached and the back action movement of taking lots which nobody had wanted to fore began.

When the second and third sections of the train arrived and found everything cornered the air was blue for miles around the metropolis. There was nothing to do, however, as every lot was protected by rifles and revolvers, and if shooting began there was no telling where it would stop. The only resource left to the disappointed men was to buy out such holders of lots as were willing to sell, or run the risk of taking inside the [illegible]. Both courses were adopted, and a good [illegible].

[illegible]

Several transfers were made to-day of [illegible] who were determined to locate here [illegible] outside the town site. There are [illegible] the purchase of homestead rights and extension of the city limits.

A CITY BUILT IN A DAY.

It Has a Daily Paper, a Bank and 1000 Men Voted at the Election.

[illegible]

It is evident that [illegible] peaceably and without [illegible] was passed to-day [illegible] of her citizens [illegible] and those who are not will be suppressed by the strong hand of frontier justice, aided by military authority under command of General Merritt, who has established headquarters at Oklahoma City. There are now about 500 troops in the territory, and they will be kept here until order is assured.

THE AFTERNOON AT GUTHRIE.

Fifteen Thousand People Now in Camp in the Immediate Vicinity.

ARKANSAS CITY, April 22.—[illegible]

[illegible] rest of the time [illegible] and rushed Eastward [illegible].

[illegible] sent about a muslin sign bearing the words "Bank of Guthrie" were compelled to take up a lot one mile back of the station. The next train arriving from Arkansas City brought a thousand homeseekers about eight minutes later. Many of this train hurried across the [illegible] country clearing the [illegible] of the [illegible]. They spread out north and south with axes and began with wonderful energy the location of town lots and streets.

The third, fourth, fifth and sixth trains from Arkansas City swelled the number to as many thousand.

When the seventh and eighth trains came in late in the afternoon, the crowds had overflowed all bounds, on the east streets, and town lots had been extended fully two miles, on the north a mile and a half, and on the south nearly a mile.

No attempt has been made to lay out a town on the west side of the track. This land has been all filed on for homesteads almost with the first advent of homeseekers in such cases.

Homeseekers started across the Oklahoma line at noon, in wagons and on horseback, and began to pour into the new city. Their horses were reeking wet from the furious drive. They took possession of such town lots in the future Oklahoma metropolis as they could lay claim to.

Meanwhile the land office was busily engaged by an eager and determined crowd of men waiting to file claims upon homesteads. As the afternoon wore on this crowd grew larger, until at closing time it reached in a regular line far down the street toward the railroad station.

Business in the land office went rather slowly. The register and receiver did the best they could, but the pressure upon them was tremendous. Men who were waiting to file claims were forced into a line two abreast.

Dealers in real estate began business before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. One enterprising dealer had as a backer [illegible] the safe transaction of business, a stack of rifles which had been placed there by government troops on duty at the land office. Near by was the tent of United States Marshal Needles. The tent was surmounted by a large American flag.

THE RUSH FROM PURCELL.

A Mad Stampede by 500 People Across the Canadian River.

PURCELL, I. T., April 22.—Lieutenant Adair, with troops, forded the Canadian river at 11 o'clock, and men were stationed at intervals on the river banks, so that they could guard every known fording place. Previous to crossing the lieutenant had announced that at noon, sun time, he would order his bugle to sound the recall, and that this would be the signal for the rush to begin.

At [illegible] one of the troopers discovered a wagon crossing half a mile below him, and succeeded in heading it off. The old Texan who owned it swore roundly, but was forced to follow the soldier to where the lieutenant was stationed, and was kept there until after the signal was sounded.

As the supreme moment drew near the excitement increased. Oklahoma was visible for miles from elevations in Purcell, and seemed a succession of beautiful valleys, with well timbered ridges between them. All eyes were watching Lieutenant Adair, as suddenly he is seen to motion to the soldiers near him, and the next moment the cheerful notes of the recall are sounded.

In an instant the scene changes. There is a mighty shout, and the advance guard of this invading army is racing like mad. Across the narrow water they go helter-skelter, everybody intent on reaching [illegible]. There goes a horse into a deep hole, and the rider falls sprawling out of the saddle.

By this time the swiftest are over, and heading up the slope, over the crest of the ridge. The head of the line of wagons is emerging from the river bed. The glass detects a dozen men miles beyond the river. They are boomers, who have been hiding.

Soon the last wagon has crossed the main ford, and canvas-covers begin to dot the Oklahoma landscape.

Within a few minutes Purcell had settled into its normal habits.

About 5 o'clock reports from the front began to come in, and they give a fair indication of the state of affairs which to-day's grand rush instituted. Business men were largely represented among the horsemen who led the rush. Two of these headed for a claim which one had long since staked out, and which the other coveted. The covetous man went by a few yards and set a stake. The other declared he would hold the claim, and began work on a dug-out. The dispute was not settled, however, and to-night both men claim that the homestead spirit of the law has clearly been violated by Purcell merchants who have pre-empted claims to-day. They do not intend to live upon "them," and most of them will make no improvements at present beyond building shanties or tents, or making dug-outs. In the meantime, home-seekers will roam through Oklahoma, and perhaps lose their lives in contesting claims with other needy men.

It is reported that two men have been killed eight miles from Purcell.

ANOTHER GATE.

Fifteen Thousand People Cross the Line by Way of the Old Reno Trail.

WICHITA, April 22.—The Daily Eagle's special, dated Pond Creek, via Caldwell, Kan., says: At exactly noon the gates to the "promised land" were thrown open to about 15,000 people. The old Caldwell and Fort Reno trail was the scene of one of the most exciting times ever witnessed in the West. The people seemed very much excited, and as they were strung for miles up and down the line they rushed in as though it was the only land in the United States unoccupied. They moved on quickly, every one seeming confident that he would get the 160 one hundred and sixty acres that he desired. Some were scattering towards claims, but most of them were moving rapidly towards the [illegible].

Though water on the Cimarron has subsided, no further trouble is anticipated.

THE LAND OFFICE NOT OPENED.

KANSAS CITY, April 22.—A Times special from Fort Reno, says that the Kingfisher land office was not opened to-day, as the blanks and the preparations for business were not completed.

Tacoma People Complaining at the Increase of Monopoly.

THE FAIRHAVEN & SOUTHERN LINE.

Wreck on the Northern Pacific—Tacoma Politics—[illegible] Falls From a High Trestle—[illegible]

[illegible]

Many of the citizens are indignant [illegible] of service of that officer will close the first week in May and he has positively refused re-election. Should the bill be signed it will only fasten another monopoly on Tacoma, as the water works, gas service, electric light, and and [illegible] front of the city is now in the grip of the Northern Pacific Company or its friends.

The street car way ordinance only requires two miles of road to be built and put in operation the first year, and is silent as to the rest of the time.

THE FAIRHAVEN & SOUTHERN.

A Cargo of 350 Tons of Steel Rails Started Toward the Front.

TACOMA, April 22.—The first cargo of 350 tons of steel rails for the Fairhaven & Southern Railroad left Tacoma to-day on the barge [illegible] in tow of the tug [illegible]. There are thirty-one carloads yet in the yard, and more are daily arriving for this road. The road will be pushed vigorously north and south to a transcontinental connection each way, so Nelson Bennett says, but he declines to say what the southern connection is to be. The Fairhaven & Southern is the only company engaged in active operations in either Whatcom or Skagit counties at present, though there is much talk about other schemes.

WRECK ON THE NORTHERN.

The Engineer, Fireman and Brakeman Seriously Injured.

SPOKANE FALLS, April 22.—A disastrous collision occurred this morning at Thompson Falls on the Northern Pacific. An engine and twenty cars were wrecked, and the engineer, fireman and brakeman were injured. It is thought the engineer will die. A track was built around the wreck to permit the passage of trains.

FELL FROM A HIGH TRESTLE.

The Fate of a Prisoner Who Escaped From the Albany Jail.

ALBANY, OR., April 22.—Early this morning a man was discovered lying in a small stream of water, under the trestle near the west end of the Oregon Pacific bridge. At that place the trestle is twenty-two feet high. The man had fallen from it the evening before, and lain in the cold and the wet during the night. Marshal Hoffman was notified, and placed the man in a wagon and brought him to the Russ house, where medical attendance was summoned. The man was recognized as John Erickson who was incarcerated in the county jail for assaulting J. H. Raines a few weeks ago with an upholsterer's needle. It was then learned that on Sunday, while the sheriff was attending to the other prisoners, Erickson had in some manner, just how cannot be learned, slipped from jail and was fleeing over the trestle from the city when he fell, where found. No bones were broken, [illegible] taken back to jail.

Erickson came from San Francisco [illegible] seems to be a class [illegible] who has [illegible] in the habit of drinking a great deal. He is in a critical condition, and will probably not recover from the effects of his fall and exposure.

TACOMA POLITICS.

The Republicans Meet in Convention and Place a Ticket in the Field.

TACOMA, W. T., April 22.—The republican city convention [illegible] to nominate candidates for the various city offices was held to-day at the courthouse, when Robert Wingate received the nomination for mayor, S. T. Armstrong for city treasurer, [illegible] for surveyor, J. P. Hoggins for street commissioner and W. H. Snell for city attorney. An attempt was made to nominate A. S. Hewitt for mayor, but Nelson Bennett stemmed the tide and succeeded in having Wingate nominated.

The ward committees met, with the exception of the first, and Charles Timan was nominated for councilman from the Second ward, J. F. Cromwell from the Third ward, and Sam B. Baker from the Fourth ward.

The democratic committee will meet in a few days and fix a date for their convention, which will be some time next week. There are two candidates spoken of for the democratic nomination for mayor; Henry Drum, the present occupant of that position, and C. P. Masterson, president of the Pacific National bank. Mr. Drum says positively, he will not accept the nomination, while Mr. Masterson says nothing, and may, therefore, be supposed to be in the hands of his friends. The candidates for the majority on both sides are all good men.

FROM SEATTLE.

Proposed Cable Car Extension—A Rush for Timber Land.

SEATTLE, April 22.—The Front Street Cable Railway Company has decided to extend its line from its present terminus at Depot street in North Seattle, to a point near Lake Union, two miles north, provided a sufficient subsidy can be secured from the property holders along the proposed extension. Mr. George M. Bowman was appointed agent to secure the subsidy, and there is every reason to believe he will be successful. In the event he does, the Front Street Railway Company will operate a continuous line from Occidental square, in the heart of the city, to a point over three and one-half miles north. The cost of the proposed extension, excepting power and machinery, will be $125,000.

Twenty-one birds were shot at, and Kellogg got eighteen to Dodge's eleven. This is the [illegible] successive time Kellogg has defeated Tacoma men who wanted that badge. He wins it [illegible] personal property.

At a meeting of the board of Trade this morning a proposition was submitted to incorporate that body with a capital stock of $[illegible]. It was accepted, and articles will be drawn up [illegible].

It was afterwards learned that all filings of land made to-morrow would be considered [illegible] and they did not take their dispersion much to heart.

It was learned to-day that the true name of the man found dead in bed at the Bellevue hotel [illegible] was J. A. Blackburn. He has a daughter married, named Mr. H. B. Smith, living at Newport, Perry county, Pa. He worked at Tacoma a short time before coming to Seattle, [illegible] a restaurant. The cause of his death is still a mystery.

HELENA, MONT., April 22.—The missing [illegible] daughter of Farmer Kelley returned to her father's house last night.

The report that she had been traced to disreputable surroundings in Helena was not true, as she did not come to Helena. She was spirited away by Travis and [illegible] who took her to the Sperry ranch at Benton [illegible].

Her father says that she was persuaded by her abductors to flee under the representation that some calamity was about to befall her family. She had no intention of marrying either of them.

Kelley has received anonymous letters threatening the destruction of his property and family, and warning him to [illegible] "White Caps." There is something mysterious about this episode, and the real cause of it may yet come out.

Nearly ten bushels of the poisonous stuff was scraped up. The owners of the stock killed are investigating the matter.

THE PUGET SOUND COLONY.

A Growing Feeling that the Co-operative Stockholders Have Been Swindled.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—A special from [illegible] says: A [illegible] was held yesterday of the [illegible] of the Puget Sound Co-operative Colony, and the feeling was manifested among those who attended that the whole affair looked very much like a swindle.

The colony was organized three years ago, over 1000 heads of families in different parts of the country taking from $50 to $500 worth of stock, each share representing a lot in the townsite of Port Angeles, located on Juan de Fuca strait, which connects Puget Sound with the Pacific. Things did not run smoothly, and a new board of trustees was chosen, but without doing much good.

A number of those present at yesterday's meeting appeared to be desirous of withdrawing from the [illegible] money invested. One stockholder said that besides the city reserve, which consists of [illegible] the colony owned nearly three and a half miles of water front, together with a fine harbor, the estimated value of which was $[illegible]. A sawmill, shingle and lath mills, a brickyard, blacksmith and shoe shops, [illegible] houses and stores are also owned by the colony, and all of these [illegible] the commonwealth was given at its start, assured of success, as the [illegible] upon the entire property was [illegible] since the change in the board of trustees, however, some think that the property has been [illegible].

THE JACKSON-CARDIFF FIGHT.

Lively Betting on the Result of Next Friday's Encounter.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Interest in the approaching contest between Peter Jackson, the [illegible] champion of Australia, and Patsy Cardiff, [illegible] betting is now quite lively.

For a time after the men were matched it looked as if the man from Minneapolis did not have any backers who were willing to bet a dollar on him, but during the past week he has been backed extensively. The reason for this change is that Cardiff's friends were at first misled by the many wild rumors circulated concerning the odds that were being placed on Jackson. It was said that many betting men were offered five to one on Jackson, and the friends of Cardiff who had money to place on him were naturally anxious to get as large odds as possible. It is true that a few bets were made at three to one, but no larger odds were given.

Jackson is still the favorite and it is probable that he will continue to be until Friday evening next, when the men will face one another in the ring.

San Francisco Notes.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—Mrs. J. Aitkins, who was so severely burned by the explosion of a can of kerosene with which she sought to light her kitchen fire Saturday, has died from the injuries received, after suffering most excruciating tortures.

The body of a man about 50 years of age was found in a gully, about three miles from East Oakland, last evening. The corpse was lying face downward, and a short distance from it a double-barreled shotgun, with both barrels loaded. Death was evidently the result of a rupture [illegible] over exertion. It is supposed that the deceased was G. Augustus Louis, a painter.

Yesterday, Walter Brannon, mate of the schooner Antelope, lying at the Pacific-street wharf, fell down the hatchway of his vessel, striking his side as he fell, on a projecting piece of iron. He was removed to the North Harbor police station, where he died a few minutes after receiving his injury.

MISS BELLE INMAN.

This actress, supported by the Love-Inman company, will open at New Park theater to-morrow evening for four nights and Saturday matinee. The following is from an Eastern exchange: "The Love-Inman comedy company composed of some of the strongest talent in the profession, closed a week's engagement at Capital city opera house Saturday night by repeating 'Diamonds and Pearls' to a crowded house. The people of Des Moines speak of it as one of the finest productions ever witnessed by a Des Moines audience. Belle Inman as Polly Perkins won the hearts of all. She is pretty and fascinating, both on and off the stage, and well deserves the praise of everyone."

The Denver News says: "Miss Belle Inman, supported by a strong company, closed a week's engagement last night to a crowded house. 'Facing the Enemy' was repeated, and the audience fairly went wild, though they had seen it three times before the same week. It is without a doubt one of the finest productions ever witnessed by a Denver audience."

Will be an amusing part of the programme prepared for the grand entertainment to be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on the evening of May 1 at Odd Fellows' hall, corner of Fourth and [illegible] streets. Further particulars later.

FROM THE SEASIDE.

W. H. Moore came back yesterday from the East Portland seaside camp. He secured dimensions of the well and plans for the water works to be introduced there. He reports extensive preparations in progress for the reception of the vast numbers who will go to the seaside this season.

NEARING COMPLETION.

The residence and grounds of Mr. J. L. Stewart, at the east end of Lowell street bridge, are nearing completion. The ground fronting on Sullivan's gulch has been neatly terraced. When completed, there will be no neater residence and grounds on the East Side.

THE MOTOR ARRIVES.

The new motor ordered by the Willamette Bridge Railway Company arrived yesterday by the O. R. & N. It has been on the way for a long time, but now that it has got here it will be at once put into service.

RETURNED HOME.

Mr. Samuel Staver and family, of this city, who went East last October, returned home yesterday. They had a very pleasant trip, but, like all others, are glad to get home.

NEW RESIDENCE.

Dr. Day, Raffety will have a fine residence erected in Raffety's addition, south of Stephens Slough. The location is a high and commanding one.

P. R. A. CONCERT AND BALL.

At the O. N. G. armory promises to be the most enjoyable event of the season. During the evening the following pieces will be rendered by the Fourteenth infantry band:

"Un Ballo Maschera," selection from Verdi's opera	[illegible]
"Antony Cleopatra," duo for cornet and baritone	[illegible]
"The Wild West," medley overture	[illegible]
"How Fair Thou Art," piccolo solo	Nesvadba
Czardas Hungarian	David Hasselmann
selection Nabucco	Verdi

Refreshments will be furnished by Baum & Brandes, and will be served in the lower hall during the entire evening.

BRIEF MENTION.

Articles of incorporation were yesterday filed with the clerk of the county court by the Portland Smelting and Refining Works, with [illegible], C. F. Bunker and J. C. Moreland as incorporators. The capital stock is fixed at $1,000,000, divided into 10,000 shares.

What will the Knabe, the Steck and the Behr, [illegible] the Wiley B. Allen Music Store the nucleus of the Portland piano trade. It is worthy of remark here that such pianos need no daily advertising. Throughout the Northwest they are known to be "indisputably the best."

EASTER AND ITS CUSTOMS.

Pagan Origin of This Feast and Its Christian Significance.

How the Day is Observed by the People of Different Lands—The Hard-Boiled Egg and Its History.

In the days of the jolly old Pagans, who lived in the way back centuries, originated a good many of the ceremonies and festivals which Christianity has borrowed and sanctified. Foremost among the latter is Easter. The Teutons, though they may not have been personally acquainted with [illegible] had a lively sense of rejoicing over the advent of the spring [illegible] In her honor, therefore, [illegible] Easter month, [illegible] April.

The early Christian missionaries, when they found the Anglo-Saxons and Teutons would not [illegible] be persuaded to resign this festival [illegible] determined to [illegible]

[illegible]

This year Easter falls on the 21st of April. The earliest possible day is the 22d of March, and it fell on that day in 1818—for the last time in about two hundred years. One object in arranging the calendar, [illegible] was that Easter might never fall on the same day as the Jewish Passover. They did [illegible], however, in 1805, on the 14th of April; in 1825, on the 3d of April, and will do so again in 1903 on the 1st of April, in 1927 on the 14th of April, and in 1981 on the 19th of April. The Jewish festival usually occurs in Passion week, in Lent, and never before the 26th of March or after the 25th of April. On the other hand, the Christian festival is never before the 22d of March, as it was in 1818 [illegible] The latest Easter occurred in 1886, on the 25th of April, and it will not fall on that date again until 1943.

EASTER CEREMONIES AT CHRIST'S TOMB.

Extreme simplicity marked the Easter observance of the primitive Christians, one of the customs being that which is still retained by the Greek church of saluting each other with "Christ is risen!" to which is answered "Christ is risen, indeed!" This simplicity was departed from when Constantine, with his great love of pomp and ceremony, established a new form of observance. The city on Easter eve was brilliant, [illegible] with huge waxen tapers, and the altars of the churches were resplendent with lights and beautiful canopies. Sepulchres representing the resting place of the Savior were built within the sanctuaries, and all night long the people waited for the supreme moment. At 3 A. M. two priests would solemnly make their way to the sepulcher, and taking therefrom an image of the crucified Lord, elevate it before the assembled throng. At that instant the grand chorus would make the sacred edifice ring with the inspiring "Christus Resurgens." After a parade around the exterior of the church, during which the sacred image was borne under a magnificent canopy, it would be placed upon the high altar and there remain until Ascension day.

As might be expected, in Jerusalem, the city wherein is found the many spots sacred to the memory of the crucified and risen Lord, the observances of Easter are especially interesting and affecting. But one mass is celebrated. This is at an altar erected for the occasion directly in front of the holy sepulchre [illegible] The Patriarch of [illegible] is the celebrant, assisted by the members of the Franciscan order. [illegible]

[illegible]

THE EASTER EGG.

A large number of fables were once [illegible]

Today to a large extent the real egg as a thing for presentation from friend to friend is being dispensed with, and some little gift in the semblance of an egg is substituted. Among a people so ingenious in trifles as the Parisians the opportunity is not lost, so that egg-shaped articles are to be had in every conceivable variety of materials. One would think that the once imperial eagle of France had summoned all the birds of the air to come to Paris, built their nests in shop windows, and there deposited their eggs for good luck; go where you will, look into whatever shop you fancy, there you see eggs, from the size of a [illegible] as large as a bowl—the ostrich egg, for instance. The toy shops are full of egg shaped boxes with tiny dolls and playthings. Here you have chocolate eggs, full of cream where the yolk should be; there you have sugar eggs filled with liquor, and again [illegible] a scent bottle. [illegible] streets are women with barrows, crying aloud "Des oeufs! des oeufs!" [illegible] boards are piled two kinds of eggs, one white, natural; the other red, cooked in logwood water. These red eggs, ready boiled, are sold in every street in Paris.

Some of the nests are beautiful works of art. Here is a stoat or weasel stealthily climbing up a tree to suck the eggs with the parent bird [illegible] all ready to drive the intruder away. Altogether, in Paris, Easter eggs are one of its sights and well worth seeing.

IN OTHER COUNTRIES.

The Eastertide is celebrated in a more imposing manner by the whole people. In Russia little business is transacted during the week, and in the matter of pomp and ceremony nothing equals the celebration except a coronation. A peasant presenting a princess with an egg is permitted to salute her on the cheek. In London the customs of hundreds of years ago still prevail. At All Hallows church, Lombard street, the sixty youngest scholars of Christ's hospital each receive a penny and a bag of raisins. At the church of St. Bartholomew the Grand, in Smithfield, twenty one widows pick up a sixpence from a flat tombstone. The origin of this ceremony it is impossible to trace, as it is lost in obscurity.

In Spain the Catholic church observes the entire week with great solemnity, and little work is done by the people. In the provinces of France the new season is observed with especial manifestations, and, indeed, there is everything to arouse religious enthusiasm in those who love to take part in such demonstrations. The budding trees, the blooming flowers and the sunshine of the spring time all combine to dispel the gloom of winter and to awaken a new fervor and energy. From the moment the bells begin to ring out the dawning of the day the people flock into the streets in holiday attire. The buildings are almost covered with drapings of white cloth and [illegible] with streamers, of colored ribbons and festoons of flowers.

In the grand procession the civic and religious orders join, and are accompanied by the military with bands of music and the [illegible] in their religious uniforms of black. Each of the [illegible] carries a silk flag or banner trimmed with gold fringe denoting the order to which he belongs. The members of the Sisterhood, with their dark robes, vividly contrast with the young girls from the convents, who are dressed in pure white, as are the priests, who also take part.

But in Rome the day is the greatest of the year. Preparation is made for it a long time in advance and the ceremonials are most elaborate. The pealing of cannon ushers in the day, and at an early hour thousands of men, women and children, hasten to St. Peter's. The church is newly decorated for the occasion and around the tomb of St. Peter is a perfect blaze of light. The Holy Father officiates in person at the high mass. He is borne from the hall of the Vatican to the church, seated in his chair of state, carried on the shoulders of his officers. His robes are most gorgeous, and upon his head is the triple crown which signifies the embodiment in his person of temporal and spiritual power and a union of both. On each side of him and before and behind march men bearing huge fans of ostrich feathers, upon which are painted eyes to symbolize the eternal vigilance of the church. In the church he rests under a rich canopy of silk. After the mass he is borne back to a balcony over the central doorway, where, seated upon his chair of state, he pronounces a benediction, with indulgences and absolution. A vast throng is always present at this ceremony, and a [illegible] copies of the prayers that have been [illegible] which are distributed by the pope and his attendants.

Many old customs that prevailed years ago are now wholly forgotten, but as each year goes by a new interest seems to be taken in the Easter festival, and it may be that before another generation shall have passed away Easter will outrival in importance even the glories of the Christmas tide.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Grand Lecturer R. F. Trevellick Delivers an Address on the Order.

Large Attendance at Union Hall Sunday—Synopsis of the Speaker's Lecture—Purpose of the Order Explained.

As per announcement, Mr. R. F. Trevellick, of Detroit, Mich., delivered a lecture to a large audience [illegible] at Union hall Sunday [illegible] of one and three-quarter hours' [illegible] The delivery of the speaker is very [illegible]

[illegible]

The cause of the trouble, said the speaker, and the cause of so much bickering and dissatisfaction among wage earners was jealousy—jealousy of men of merit, who climbed highest, on the part of their fellow workmen. There was nothing of this among Knights of Labor, for giving away a secret: every Knight held his right hand to heaven and took an oath to the effect that he would give assistance to all brothers [illegible] poor, that they might secure employment, and in season or out of season, guard the life, honor and reputation of a brother, his wife and his children. He scored, in cutting terms, the Knights of Portland who deserved it; he praised those who still saw the light. He had come from The Dalles, and he must say that Portland, in the sense in which he was speaking, was too bad to talk about. He had heard that the Knights were dead here. In the city the question was never asked whether a Knight had been sprinkled in the Catholic or Methodist churches, or had been plunged as a Baptist, but had he the power he would put some of the Knights of Labor in this city under water and keep them there three weeks to do them some good; and as to the [illegible]

WONDERS OF THE HUMAN BODY.

The skin contains more than 2,000,000 openings, which are the outlets of an equal number of sweat glands. The human skeleton consists of more than 200 distinct bones. An amount of blood equal to the whole quantity of the body passes through the heart once every minute. The full capacity of the lungs is about 320 cubic inches. About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled at each breath in ordinary respiration. The stomach daily produces nine pounds of gastric juice for digestion of food; its capacity is about five pints.

There are more than 500 separate muscles in the body, with an equal number of nerves and blood vessels. The weight of the heart is from 8 to 12 ounces. It beats 100,000 times in 24 hours. Each respiratory duct is one-fourth of an inch in length, of the whole about 9 miles. The average man takes 5½ pounds of food and drink each day, which amounts to one ton of solid and liquid nourishment annually. A man breathes 18 times a minute, and 3000 cubic feet, or about 375 hogsheads, of air every hour of his existence.

To keep the system in perfect order no remedy is so good as electricity, and that is proving itself the most efficacious of all known treatments. Dr. Darrin submits the following cures recently performed through this subtle agent:

This magnificent property comprises [illegible] lots and lies immediately between the city of East Portland (population 12,000) on the south and the city of Albina (population 4,000) on the north, being really a "reserve" between two populous centres with a combined population of SIXTEEN THOUSAND. It is high, commanding a view of the entire cities of Portland, East Portland and Albina and is reached by the street cars of the Willamette Bridge Railway Company from either Portland or East Portland. This company is now operating two lines of street cars, one running north from Holladay's addition, through the heart of East Portland, across the Morrison street bridge, and the other running due west across the new steel bridge, both lines terminating in Portland. In addition to these two lines the cars of the Vancouver motor line run directly through Holladay's addition from north to south. The property can also be easily reached from the "west side" by means of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's steam ferry or by the small ferries running from Portland to Albina. Some of the finest residences on the "east side" are located in this addition. Many of the most prominent residents of Portland and East Portland are now purchasing property in Holladay's addition, and many elegant and substantial residences will be constructed there during the coming year. A magnificent Boulevard, Holladay avenue, 100 feet wide, cuts through the entire property from west to east, and is now one of the most popular drives out of the city. This connects with the new steel railroad and wagon bridge spanning the Willamette, on the west, thus giving easy access into Portland from this most desirable property. Address or call on

"SERVED HIM RIGHT."

The full story of Elizabeth Beechler, who was recently tried and acquitted at Omaha for killing Henry W. King, jr., of Chicago, is a remarkable tale of a wronged woman driven to desperation by the brutal abuse and treachery of a man whom she unwisely trusted. King was the son of a very wealthy Chicago merchant, disinherited by his father because of his profligate and corrupt life. He was 30 years of age when he met this young woman of 20 and persuaded her to elope with him under promise of marriage. She sinned, of course, but was more sinned against than sinning. King introduced the girl to her parents as his wife, went to Quincy, Ill., where they lived together as man and wife for a year, the young couple leading an exemplary life and moving in good society. King introduced her everywhere as his wife, and joined a church with her at her persuasion. She took this disinherited son, expelled from his parents' home, and made a home for him, persuaded him to lead a good life, gave no cause for jealousy and became by him the mother of a child. When King's money began to run low his parents persuaded him to desert the woman and child, whose love had lifted him out the ditch and made him lead the only clean year of existence he had known from boyhood. When the woman found out that she was deserted she wrote letters to him granting his request to be silent for the present to his parents concerning their connection, sympathizing with him in his troubles, and promising to wait for as long as he should ask, saying, "I do not want money—I want you," and indicating by other expressions a belief in him and an impression that he was kept from her unwillingly, but would yet return. He wrote her: "Hold the fort. We are man and wife just the same. I will never give you up." In her reply she said: "God knows I have done my best to prevent your mother and sister from knowing this. I ask your forgiveness and theirs for what I have done, but I loved you, and love you still." Finally the woman said that King was plotting to throw her off, and her letters became full of sorrow and reproach. "Marry me, Harry King," she writes in one of them, "and I will be content to live with you in a barn." In another she says: "You promised to marry me. You must keep your promise." Finally in her poverty she consented to a separation and returned to her former home in Cleveland. King escaped from his parents, found her, and professing still to consider her his wife, persuaded her to return with his child to Chicago and live with him. Then the parents got their worthless son back again and began again to persecute the woman through the lawyers. King now began to treat her brutally, knocking her down with his fist while drunk on one occasion in the street. Then in her despair she consented that there should be divorce but the parents refused to acknowledge that there had been any marriage. The woman, determined that King should clear her good name, wrote him: "My husband, you introduced me to my mother as your wife. My mother has always believed it; believes it now. I want evidence to show that I have not deceived her. I want it known that I am your wife, and there must be some proceedings for divorce taken. If there is to be a legal separation, let some proceedings for divorce be taken." Finally she consented to sign a renunciation, or separation, for his sake and that of his family, but with no thought that she was free to marry again. King went to Missouri, married the daughter of a wealthy man, moved to Omaha and lived sumptuously at the Paxton house. The woman whom he had cast off hearing of this, went to Omaha, saw King, who seized her brutally by the throat, and the wronged woman shot and killed him. Her counsel closed his plea for acquittal as follows:

> What did this woman do? The father disinherited him of father's love, of mother's company, of home, of all. This young woman endowed him with a love that mocked at cruelty, with a love that mocked at starvation, with a love that mocked at privation. She endowed him with a purpose that stood like the rock of Gibraltar against the dashing waves of adversity. She gave him more than all that his father and mother had deprived him of. She found him unworthy to enter his father's house, and she took him and made a home for him. She taught him the devotion of love. She taught him to kneel beside the child and to say: "Our father who art in heaven." She led him into the church. She pointed out to him the way to place, to honor, to friends, to prosperity, to heaven. This is what this "murderess" did.

The defense was insanity and self-defense and the jury reached the verdict in five minutes. Everybody in the room cheered and cried, and even the prosecuting attorney said he was glad of it, as the girl had his sympathy from the first. Of course it is never easy to justify such sentimental verdicts whether it is for a wronged woman or a wronged man, but there is much to be said for a young woman of 20, whose love is lavished with reckless generosity upon a worthless wretch, who wins her heart, wastes her beauty, spoils her opportunity for good marriage, and then flings her off like a weed on the sea of poverty, the sucked orange of his lustful, treacherous lips, to be trampled under foot by every stranger in the street.

This woman, in her relations with King, since there had been no formal marriage, acted unwisely, imprudently; she had sinned against judgment and against the canons of moral and civil law. But this gave the man no right to take advantage of a situation in which his own fault was at least as great as her own. So the jury, though it pronounced her "not guilty" on the technical plea of insanity, really made up the verdict on the broad ground of general justice summed up in the phrase, "Served him right." Such verdicts should have a wholesome effect upon scoundrels like King, wherever they are. It cannot but do good as a means of justice and a mode of restraint upon villains of this sort, who try to pluck women at every opportunity, as the hawk does the dove, to serve the same and [illegible] upon them, that "hell has no fury like a woman scorned."

THE NAVAL COMMISSION.

The commission to locate a navy yard on this coast performed wonders in the way of examining the locations on the Columbia river, for they took the whole business in while making the trip from Astoria to Portland. Now, there are as good sites for a navy yard in Oregon as on Puget sound. Young's bay, below Astoria, affords a good situation, or good points can be found up the river, where iron, lime, coal and forests abound, and these are necessary for modern ship building. No doubt there are good locations on the sound, but it doesn't appear that these gentlemen gave Oregon a fair show in the inquiry. On the Columbia, below St. Helens, there are the resources mentioned above, so that an iron ship can be built there from the iron abundant close by. That is what is wanted, and what can be more convenient than to find iron, coal and forests on the same ground from which it will be possible to complete a vessel?

The success in building of the cruiser Charleston by the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, surprises the world, because it was not supposed the Pacific coast could do the work in such perfection. It seems that the Charleston fills the contract completely and satisfies the ideas of our best naval critics. Then if such work can be done there it can be done here as well. But where did the Union Iron Works get the material for building the Charleston? Could there be anything more convenient or economical than to plant a navy yard where the native resources of the country furnish everything for the construction of ships?

Another great advantage for a navy yard on the Columbia river is that it is easily defended from a foreign enemy—far more so than any place on Puget sound. The Columbia river cannot be entered and navigated by hostile fleets, with any suitable measures for defense at its entrance and on salient points above. The Oregon side of the Columbia is land-locked and safe from all the bad weather that blows. Another important fact is what the Seattle papers so persistently claim for Lake Washington, the fresh water will keep vessels clear of barnacles and make it of importance to ships from off long voyages that have foul bottoms, as they will be cleaned by the action of the fresh water.

PRACTICAL EFFORT FOR DEFECTIVE YOUTH.

The primary object in all educational effort—that of helping, through a systematic and practical course of training, people to help themselves—is being specially developed by Rev P. S. Knight, superintendent of the deaf mute school at Salem. To teach these unfortunates for whom this school is maintained to be self-supporting is not only a benefit to them, but to the community. The value of special training is often manifested in the fact that deaf mutes, and even blind persons thus trained, not infrequently make a better living for themselves than do persons in like station in life, who are in possession of all their faculties. The latter are left to their own devices, while the former are carefully drilled in some vocation, and are enabled and encouraged to make the most of the resources of which they are possessed.

A number of deaf mutes, in connection with the state school at Salem, have been taught the trade of broom-making, becoming adepts in that employment. It is now the purpose of the superintendent to give some of his pupils a chance to learn the printing business. To this end he has purchased a press upon which he intends to print the Sign, the monthly paper of the institution. He will also extend instruction to job printing as soon as practicable, thus giving the boys a chance to earn, as well as to learn something.

If the argument of humanity, urging the state to take care of and educate these children until physically and industrially able to take care of themselves were entirely wanting, political economy or common prudence would urge the matter on the ground of public self-interest, since it costs far less to teach them to be self-supporting in their youth than to take care of them as incapables through life. The avidity with which many, if not most children who, "with wisdom at one entrance quite shut out," seize upon opportunity when presented in the form of special training is well attested. Necessity develops resources in ingenuity and patience which is remarkable in these children of misfortune, and while the utmost efforts of kindness, generosity and philanthropic endeavor have not been able to make the blind see, or the deaf hear, they have formed a combination that has been able to make of them self-sustaining citizens by careful direction of the resources that remain to them. Hence the sum spent annually on the blind and deaf mute schools is money that the state can well afford to pay both from the humane and practical stand-point.

FARMERS AND TRUSTS.

The farmer has little to spare from the profits of the farm, for the present margin on all staples over the cost of production is small. We hear of one thing and another on which the scheming traders of the world have combined to put up the price. The bagging combine has put grain sacks at a figure that is an imposition, and now the manufacturers of twine for binding grain have made a combination that is a conspiracy against the hard-working producer.

The schemers who plot to rob the people by combinations and trusts are all public enemies, and the present time seems to be afflicted with more combinations against the public interest than have been known in any former age. This being the case, there is necessity for action to subvert all such schemes, for legislation that will prevent such combinations and make it a crime to attempt to put up the necessaries of life or things needed or indispensable to leading occupations. How this is to be effectually done is a question of the greatest importance, and whether it can be effectually done can only be decided by witnessing the operation of laws passed for that purpose.

Trusts, or "combines," under one name and another, prevail in all countries and are not confined to the United States. To what extent law can reach such combinations is to be decided, and meanwhile years must elapse. The true way to meet wrong is to fight it. It should be possible for farmers and wheat-growers to control their trade and support those who will deal fairly. It may be that competition has run down the price of bags and twine below a profit, and this combination is made for the purpose of sustaining trade, but that gives no excuse for putting up prices to an exorbitant figure. The principle of "live and let live" should govern business, but frequently competition and over-production are the causes of loss in trade. This is as much the case with farmers as with manufacturers. There are many seasons when production is so abundant that the over-supply is depressing to prices. At the present time potatoes bear a nominal value and oats and onions are lower in price than for years. Everything the farmer produces bears a lower price than usual and lower than he can afford. In these circumstances it comes hard on him to have the price of two necessary aids to his harvest—twine and bagging—become high-priced through the manipulation of speculators.

With business organization and proper combination, the farming community might do much to protect itself from such conspiracy. There are always parties outside the trusts who will contract at reasonable prices, if they can be made sure of a certain demand for their goods. While legislation may be needed to make trusts and combinations illegal, every man should be alive to his own interests and act on the defensive. As a rule, farmers lack confidence and do not act strongly in concert. This is a matter that calls for energetic action and harmony and confidence. "The gods help those who help themselves," was the ancient maxim, and it is as true to-day as thousands of years ago, that the only reliable way to secure rights and defend them, is by depending on one's own power so far as possible.

"The line of duty," though reasonably expansive, does not reach out and take in all the claims of persons who would like to see their names on the nation's pension rolls. An example of this is noted in the case of C. H. Sedgwick, late midshipman United States steamships Santee and Constitution, who asked a pension on the ground of injury received by the kick in the side from a comrade on shipboard. He related the history of the injury, saying that he was "twitting and teasing" his comrade, who, becoming incensed, administered the kick from which the disability resulted. Assistant Secretary Bussey, of the pensions office, sustains a former decision rejecting the application, alleging that the claimant not only contributed directly to produce the cause of his injury, but that he was engaged at the time in a manner that was manifestly in violation of the rules and regulations of the service and subversive of discipline and good order, and the injury resulting was unquestionably not incurred in "the line of duty." It is hoped that the claimant limped away after hearing this decision with his hand on his side and with added respect for government officials whom he evidently mistook for fools or knaves.

"AFRAID TO MARRY."

A Philadelphia minister preached a sermon on social topics recently wherein he repeated the familiar story that the extravagance of women makes men "afraid to marry," and dilated upon the alleged fact with alternate severity and pathos. It is certainly a matter of serious regret that modern young women are not satisfied to begin life according to the advice of the preacher "as their mothers did," do their own washing, scrubbing and sewing, and, in short take a long sweep backward in civilized methods, while the rest of the world proceeds to work upon an improved basis. It is indeed sad to contemplate the enforced hardships inflicted upon conscientious, plodding, economical young men who are by the extravagances of women forced to lounge around elegantly furnished club rooms, with their tame and cheap accompaniments of terrapin, wine, cards and imported cigars, pining meanwhile for the cosy comforts of cottages with bare floors and an atmosphere redolent of soapsuds and cod-fish balls. Something should be done to relieve this severe strain upon the sensibilities of the modern young man, who really "cannot afford to marry."

After anxious and no doubt prayerful meditation upon the subject a class of preachers, led by Rev. De Witt Talmage, periodically dive into dusty pigeonholes, and draw therefrom missionary documents filled with stale platitudes about woman's dereliction in duty, and striking a high moral attitude alternately rail at and plead with women upon the subject of feminine extravagance that is holding the club room doors open to faint-hearted young men, who shrink from the possible cost of maintaining homes, which these unreasonable women expect to have supplied with modern conveniences. There is no chance for mistake in these premises. True, judging from the alleged growing magnitude of the evil bewailed, in the introduction, which is the only part of the discourse that bears the mark of recent effort, the oracles have failed not only to work a reformation, but even to check the evil. But the reason of this no doubt lies in the fact that the lecture is given so unfrequently—not oftener, on an average than once a quarter, whereas the importance of the subject demands the rendition twice a month, at least.

There seems to be a remissness of duty on the part of Portland ministers in this matter. This may be owing to the fact that the city is comparatively young, and feminine extravagance has not yet developed the awful fear of matrimony in young men that seems to be a leading feature in club room life in the more populous cities of the East; but it is prudent to forestall calamity when possible, and it would be a reproach upon local talent if this thing should become full fledged here before the people were aware of its existence, necessitating the importation of a specialist from New York or Philadelphia to diagnose and treat the case. We trust that our clergy will not invite the charge of negligence in this matter. It is well to remember, in serious cases, the proverb that declares that the "prudent man foreseeth evil and hideth himself, while the simple pass on and are punished."

All the Park blocks in the city were intended by their donors for public use as open parks, and the public have a right to insist that they shall be kept for such use. Any effort to cover them with public buildings will be resisted and probably will be defeated, as it ought to be. Postponement of erection of a city hall for an indefinite period will probably be a consequence of the effort to use any one of the public parks for the purpose; but of course this will make no difference. Members of our common council say "there is no hurry." Of course there isn't. Eight, twelve or twenty years hence will do for anything in Portland. Our common council represents this feeling admirably. Its members are of that class who never agree in anything, except in the principle that "there is no hurry." Upon every other proposition there is strife of opinion and endless dissent. No two can agree as to when, how, or where any public work shall be executed, but all can agree that there is no hurry about it. There are men, not a few of them, who lived in old Oregon, out of all relations with the world and each one trying to live by maintaining his own narrow interests and opinions against those of his neighbor, until the habits of mind necessary for life under the civil and social conditions that must exist in large communities have been altogether lost. Hence there can be no agreement, no concert of action. Each man instinctively opposes every other man's suggestion or proposition; each refuses to follow what any other man begins. These habits of incivism split the community into its simple units, and the result is that the community cannot be got to act as an organized force, and nothing is done. Our city government is but one of the many examples of this survival of old Oregon. This spirit, though death is invading it on one side and immigration on the other, still permeates the country, through and through. Its main characteristics are no agreement and "no hurry."

The rush into Oklahoma is unprecedented in the history of Western immigration. It will be fortunate, indeed, if among the thousands who crowd upon each other's heels in the grand rush no affront is given that will call the ready Winchester from the emergency corner of the intending settler's wagon or the revolver from his hip pocket. The boomers are in the main a peaceable, well-disposed class of citizens, but their nerves are under extreme tension from excitement and eagerness, and it becomes easy to use a gun under such circumstances. However, every precaution has been taken by the government to keep down trouble, and the movers protest their intent to conduct themselves as law-abiding citizens, and it is hoped that the swarm will settle peaceably, and that the buzz attendant upon the hurried motion of the colonists will shortly subside into the quiet hum of contented industry.

The news of the safety of the passengers and crew of the steamer Denmark comes as a complete surprise. All reasonable hope, which from the first had slight basis, had been abandoned some days ago, and the coming into port of these shipwrecked wanderers will be hailed almost as a miracle. It is as if the sea had in this instance given up its dead.

Within the city limits of Chicago the area is 40 square miles, and the population is supposed to be 850,000. Near suburbs of the city contain about 250,000 more. The area of New York is 41 square miles, San Francisco 42, St. Paul 51, St. Louis 61, Minneapolis 53, New Orleans 60, Philadelphia 129, Buffalo 42.

Mrs. Ferry thinks it a pity that a woman can't study French without arousing the ire of her unreasonable lord and throwing the gossips of two continents into spasms of virtuous glee. Of course an American must have a French teacher in order to get the Parisian accent.

Country exchanges are agitating the question of celebrating the Fourth of July. The habit of taking time by the forelock is an old-fashioned and justly celebrated virtue, but would it not be a good plan to get the Washington centennial, Decoration day and Labor day well off the programme before the trouble begins about funds and fireworks for the glorious Fourth? What with celebrations, picnics, camp-meetings and other frivolities the seaside season is likely to find people tired and ill able to bear the fatigue that a rest upon the beach imposes.

Crook county has the finest summer range for sheep in all the country east of the mountains, and is annually invaded by the flocks of adjoining counties, much to the anger of the resident stockmen. Representative Williamson did his best to have a bill passed last session prohibiting the pasturing in one county of sheep owned in another, but his bill was killed in the senate. The Ochoco Review now says, a little sarcastically: "Wasco and Sherman county sheepmen will find plenty of grass on our mountain ranges this season, but they had better bring along a supply of water, for that article will be scarce. Springs and streams everywhere in the mountains are lower than they have been for years, and it now looks as if there would be but very little water in the mountains the coming summer."

The outlook in Crook county is now better than it has been for years. The wool crop is good, and the prospects for sales of horses and cattle are fair. Besides these regular resources, the Ochoco mines are beginning to attract considerable attention, and may become a source of wealth to the county. Experts from various mining districts have recently been examining different quartz ledges at the head of Ochoco and pronounce the quartz good. They say capital will soon be forthcoming to develop the mines. When the resources of the great "unknown country" east of the Cascades are known there will be a rush of immigration to that section such as no other part of Oregon has ever seen.

William R. Archer, the "father of the Illinois senate," died at his home in Pittsfield, Ill., April 13, of pneumonia. Mr. Archer was born in Flushing, L. I., June 21, 1816. He studied law in New York city in the office of John L. Lawrence and began practice in Illinois directly after his admission to the bar. He was at one time law partner of Stephen A. Douglas, and ranked at the top of his profession. He was a member of the constitutional conventions of Illinois in 1847 and 1870. He was the oldest member in continuous service in the state senate and a life-long democrat. One of his most notable legal achievements was the successful defense of a suit against the state of Illinois involving $3,000,000. He left an unsullied professional and personal reputation.

Seven murders have been committed in Grant county within the past twelve months. Of this number of slayers of their fellow beings one is serving a four or five years' term in the penitentiary, one is under sentence of death, one is unknown, one was considered justifiable homicide because it was only an Indian killed, one was released by the justice of the peace at [illegible] and afterwards made his escape, and two are awaiting trial. All these within a year, besides numerous cutting and shooting affrays. After recounting the foregoing facts the Grant County News says: "Tax-payers and jurors, is it not high time that some of the cold-blooded villains were dangling at the rope's end?"

Consul Henry Dithmar, whose death at Breslau is announced, was born in Alsace in 1824. He came to this country in his infancy with his parents, who settled at Easton, Pa. He was one of the best known printers in New York for many years, and was foreman of the Evening Post in William Cullen Bryant's time for twenty-five years. He was appointed United States consul at Breslau, Germany, in 1878 by President Hayes. Consul Dithmar leaves a widow, who was with him when he died, and one son, a member of the editorial staff of the New York Times.

E. E. Sharon, a Pendleton real estate dealer, who has just returned home from a visit to Portland, has not found it necessary to disparage this city as do many other real estate dealers of other towns. He tells the East Oregonian that he is "greatly surprised at Portland's development and progress since his last visit but a short time ago. East Portland, especially, is growing prodigiously, houses being scattered from the city limits to Mount Tabor and going up on every hand. There is no boom; nothing but a legitimate and remarkable growth."

"We certainly did not intend to depreciate any other part of Oregon," says the East Oregonian, "and we are quite willing to agree with THE OREGONIAN as to the fertility of the soil and the salubrity of the climate of all parts of this young and glorious state of ours. We don't want to talk about our neighbors in this respect; in fact could have nothing but good and pleasant words to say." That is the way to talk. Let this feeling prevail throughout the state press and it will do much to aid the general progress of the commonwealth.

A corps of Oregon Pacific engineers have made their appearance along the Deschutes in Crook county and great excitement has been caused among the few settlers in that section. All the land near the river and along the line of survey is being taken up. Mr. B. F. Nichols, who owns a ranch at the point where the Oregon Pacific survey crosses the river, is positive his place will finally become a big townsite. If a few engineers create such a furore, what will the railroad itself do?

People over on Shoalwater bay and along the Willapa river are excited over a report that the Northern Pacific will build a branch down the river to the bay, leaving the main line at Winlock. The principal foundation for the report appears to be the fact that some strangers have been nosing around in that region. However, it would be a good point to establish a branch line and it is by no means impossible that the hopes of the good people of Shoalwater bay may be realized in the near future.

Farming land in abundance is to be had in Baker, Union, Grant, Malheur and Harney counties, and at few places in the world can the soil be equaled for productiveness. When the allotment of land to the Umatilla Indians is made and the remainder of the reservation thrown open for settlement there will be at least 50,000 acres more, and these latter will be taken up about as quickly as applications can be made out.

Commenting upon the fact that the United States is now taking about $10,000 a day from the Northwest for timber lands, the Pacific Journal says: "If the government was conducted on business principles, or the same that an individual would conduct his business, fully half that amount would at once be expended in erecting improvements for the Northwest."

Harney county must have some peculiar citizens. The Burns Herald announces that William Gibson was recently arrested near Burns for stealing a frame house. If that's the kind of people they have over in the new county, it won't be safe for the Oregon Pacific to build a railroad through it. A man who would steal a house wouldn't hesitate to steal a railroad.

The prospect of establishing the Presbyterian academy in Spokane Falls is very gratifying to the people of that city as it will insure the erection there of another large and permanent building of a public character, and will draw the attention of a vast number of people to the metropolis of the inland empire.

W. P. Gray, of Vancouver, is an applicant for the office of register of the land office at that place. He is well known in the Northwest, having always lived either in Oregon or Washington, and has been closely identified with its growth and prosperity, and is besides a man well qualified to fill the office.

The real estate sales at Spokane Falls during the past week amounted to over half a million dollars, being the largest week's business in the city's history. There is a continued influx of outside capital with unprecedented inquiry for desirable ground.

Exhibitions of cheek are not confined to the male sex. Froncie Hie, who killed her alleged husband, Charlie Skeels, at Spokane Falls, has made an application to the court of probate to be appointed administratrix of his estate.

The sum of $20,000 is appropriated for Washington territory in the enabling act to defray the expense of getting into the Union. As this will not be sufficient, the new state will have to make up the deficiency.

The Grant County News says that "Mr. P. McGinnis, esq., will go to join the angels on Thursday next."

Biennial Elections.

Philadelphia Press.

Ohio will vote in November on the question of substituting biennial for annual elections, a resolution to that effect having passed both branches of the legislature now in session. Under the present arrangement the state has an annual canvass, choosing a governor and members of the legislature in odd years and minor state officers in the even years. This move for lessening the number of elections is in line with that made elsewhere. The only Northern states which retain annual elections are Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

John G. Whittier has consented, after long and persistent urging by the committee, to write an ode for the Washington centennial celebration in New York.

J. W. Coffey, of Philadelphia, known as "the skeleton dude," is haunting Castle Garden in search of a wife, and proposes to settle $5,000 upon any woman who will marry him.

An authentic picture of Phillips Brooks has never appeared in a public print. No photograph of the great divine is obtainable for publication and will never be if Dr. Brooks has his way.

Since the purchase of Alaska, it can be said of the United States what has been said of England for the last century—that the sun never sets on her dominions. At sunset in Alaska the next morning's sun is an hour high in Maine.

Sergeant Wood, of Garnett's brigade, comes to the front with the singular claim for distinction that he fired the first shot which wounded General Hancock at Gettysburg. Mr. Wood, who is an ardent democrat, is promptly preparing papers to apply for a pension.

Mr. Blaine is said to have doubled his fortune within the last few years. His best paying investment is the Little Hope Silver Mine, which has paid, it is said, $4,750,000 in dividends in the last five years. He admits having already received from that source $1.00 for every dollar invested and the stock is still in his name. He is also a large stockholder in the Price of Iron mine at Leadville, which is paying dividends of $25,000 a month.

John I. Blair of Blairstown, N. J., is reputed to be worth $50,000,000, yet he spends upon himself less almost than is paid to his humblest workman. When Mr. Blair stops at the hotel, if he intends to stay over night, he usually asks for a small single room on the parlor floor. If it is in the winter and too cold to sit without a fire he sits in the public lobby. If he intends to leave before midnight he does not take a room at all, but occupies the public rooms down stairs until train time. To change his shirt he slips into the little washroom behind the offices. "I never order a [illegible]," he said, jokingly, one day to a gentleman who offered him a cigar.

John Bright wrote to a friend in this country September 16, 1863: "I need not tell you how much I rejoice in the prospect of a termination of your wretched war, and how much I hope that your independence of the slave power is now secured. There is much angry feeling on your side against this country, and there is cause for it. Nevertheless, our government has stood firm against the propositions for mediation or recognition from France, and its conduct in some respects contrasts favorably with that of the emperor of the French, and this I hope your people will not forget. The ironclad ships are not allowed to go out on their piratical career, and Mason, the Southern envoy, has left London in disgust. I hope that this will show you that everything is not bad in England."

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

THE TOWN OF BROWER.—Yesterday there was filed for record with the recorder a plat of the town of Brower, consisting of three blocks 218x200 feet each. The townsite is situated in the mountains, at the sawmill of Brower & Thompson, about four miles from Latourelle falls, 1650 feet above the level of the Columbia, in a body of fine timber. This town was started last summer and was partially destroyed by the fire which raged through that district, but it is now prosperous and growing rapidly. There is a well-supplied general merchandise store there, new roads are being opened out and Messrs. Brower & Thompson have there a mill which cuts 25,000 feet per day and is flooded with orders. The mill is on Young's creek, the waters of which are used to carry the lumber manufactured down to the railroad through a flume three and one-half miles in length, where it is shipped to all points. There is a prosperous school in the vicinity and there are eighty-three children of school age in the district. There is also a Sunday school and a singing school, both well attended. The town of Brower already has a lawyer and a physician, and is destined to become a place of considerable importance. Application will soon be made for the establishment of a postoffice at Brower, the residents now having to go to Latourelle falls for their mail. Messrs. Brower & Thompson are men of energy, as is evidenced by the fact since they started in last winter to cut lumber they have shipped 145 carloads.

THE NEW GRAIN ELEVATOR.—Mr. F. H. Peavey, of Minneapolis, head of the firm of Peavey & Co., who are building the system of grain elevators along the lines of the O. R. & N. Co., is in the city. Mr. E. C. Michener, the resident partner of the firm, who is superintending operations on the various elevators being constructed in Eastern Oregon, is expected here to-day. Mr. A. J. McLennan, who has the contract for building the million-bushel terminal elevator here, has contracted with Messrs. McFarland & Wells, of Vancouver, for the piles needed, and Messrs. Pacquet & Smith began the work of driving them. The piles will be cut off near the bottom of the river and a grillage will be built on them in which will be placed a stone foundation for the huge structure. The construction of this foundation will be begun as soon as sufficient piles are driven and will closely follow up the pile drivers. The lumber for the huge building has been contracted for and it will be pushed ahead to completion as rapidly as possible.

COMPANY C'S NEW ROOM.—At the close of the out-door drill last night, Company C, O. N. G., held an enthusiastic meeting, during which various burning issues of vital interest to the company were fully discussed. The company is about to have their new room decorated and furnished. The walls and ceilings will be tastefully frescoed and several large paintings in oil will ornament the walls. The contract for doing this work was awarded last night. The committee, of which Lieutenant Yoran is chairman, is empowered to have full charge of the work, and make such purchases for furnishing the room as they may see fit, providing the entire expenses do not exceed $800.

OREGON COMMANDERY.—At the last meeting of Oregon Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Donald Mackay, E. C.; Seth L. Pope, G.; A. Thurlow, C. G.; T. A. E. Starr, P.; D. W. Taylor, S. W.; H. F. Gullixson, J. W.; A. Roberts, T.; S. Gill, W. The commandery appointed a committee, consisting of D. P. Thompson, F. N. Shurtleff and J. W. Cooke, to secure funds for endowing a Masonic bed at Good Samaritan hospital. The sum required is $400, which the committee will secure without trouble.

THE BEN HOLLADAY ESTATE.—Mr. Jos Holladay has finally become convinced that it is his duty, as executor, to take some steps looking to the settlement of said estate, and accordingly, on Saturday evening last met for the first time with the appraisers, Messrs. Theodore Wygant, James Steel and J. P. O. Lownsdale, and expressed a willingness to exhibit to them the property. On yesterday they began their appraisement which will take several days to complete.

CHERRIES.—The first cherries of the season were received yesterday by Levy & Spiegl, 113 and 115 Front street. They were shipped by the Vacaville Fruit Company, who are the largest growers and shippers of green fruit in the California Fruit Union. Messrs. Levy and Spiegl are the agents for the Vacaville Fruit Company for the Northwest territory, and will continue to receive cherries, apricots, peaches, etc., always beginning with the first of the season.

PACIFIC AND WILLAMETTE NEWS.

The Towboat Volga in Port—The Idaho—The Upper River—The Steam Schooner Augusta.

The steam towboat Volga is lying at the foot of E street, loading machinery, supplies, etc., which she will take to Coos bay. The tug is chartered by O'Neil & Co., who have the contract to furnish the government with stone to be used in building the jetty in the bay. The Volga will start for Astoria to-day, and her destination probably [illegible]. In transporting rock at the bay, scows will be used, and towed from the quarries on Coos river down to the jetty.

J. L. Colwell, of Skamokawa, met with quite a serious and expensive accident last Friday. There was some heavy plate glass aboard the Michigan which had been propped up in order to unload. Colwell removed the prop, letting the glass fall on him and injuring him quite severely. The glass is a total wreck and as it cost $700, it was an expensive accident.—Pioneer.

The steamer Idaho finished taking on her cargo yesterday, and sailed last night for the North. She took away about 250 tons of general merchandise, part of which will be transferred to the Alaskan steamers at Seattle. This will be her initial trip on the new Portland-Seattle route.

The recent copious rains have placed the upper Willamette in excellent steamboating condition. The steamer Champion is now plying between Harrisburg and Corvallis and way landings. There is about [illegible] bushels of wheat in this locality to be taken out on the present rise of the river.

The steam schooner Augusta arrived at her dock at the foot of A street Sunday night at 10 o'clock, with a quantity of salmon, lumber and other coast produce. At Astoria the vessel left six large fishing boats to be used this season in capturing the wily Chinook.

Last Saturday the steamer Multnomah towed a large fishwheel from the Lower Cascades up through Garrison rapids to the head of Bradford island, leaving it at a point known as the middle landing.

The tow boat E. N. Cook is at present tied up in the bone yard, where she will remain until business warrants her again getting up "fog."

The steamer Oregon arrived at Astoria at 7 A. M. yesterday and reached her dock yesterday afternoon and commenced discharging.

The Martha Fisher and Solide are still looking for a South American charter but will not accept one at the present rates.

Captain S. Smith, of the government steamer Thos. Nixon, came down from Pasco yesterday morning.

The British ship Otterspool is the only vessel in port at present having a flour or wheat charter.

The steamer State of California sailed for San Francisco from Astoria at 4 P. M. yesterday.

WOMEN CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

Weekly Meeting of the W. C. T. U.—Mrs. Smith's Lecture Given up—Routine Business.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met at their hall, No. 185 First street, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. S. N. Ross in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. R. T. Baxter informed the union that the convention of the state W. C. T. U. had been deferred by order of the executive committee from May 8 to May 22.

The committee on resolutions reported, was accepted.

The committee on arrangements for Mrs. Holbrook's lecture reported that the Tabernacle had been [illegible] the only time that was at Mrs. Smith's disposal the lecture was given up.

Miss Ross and Miss Clyde were introduced as visitors and Miss Rose and Mrs. Kelly as new members.

Mrs. C. W. Butler was introduced and presented [illegible].

The committee on securing Mrs. Lucy Washington, of the National W. C. T. U., [illegible] to deliver a lecture reported progress and were granted more time. [illegible] Mrs. Washington to lecture in Portland early in May.

[illegible]

A vote of thanks was returned to [illegible] for [illegible] to be presented to the free reading room.

A letter from Mrs. [illegible] was read informing the union that she could not take up the superintendency of juvenile work but [illegible] in the fall. Accepted.

Mrs. Dygert having removed to the summit, it was moved and carried that Mrs. Varadelle be elected superintendent of the Band of Hope.

Miss Lyman reported that she needed more literature.

Mrs. French was informed that a large number of cards with scripture mottoes had been received for the use of the rooms.

The union regretted the absence of their Ex-President Mrs. A. D. Miller, and the superintendent of the Loyal Legion, Mrs. Dygert, and expressed a hope that they may often come and visit the Portland W. C. T. U. Adjourned.

THE ROAD NEARING COMPLETION.

Fifteen Miles of the Track Between Ilwaco and Sea Land Already Laid.

A gentleman who has just returned from Ilwaco, states that the extension of the road between Ilwaco and Sea Land, the new terminus on Shoalwater bay, is being rapidly pushed to completion. The road formerly extended only to [illegible] hotel, on Weather beach, a distance of [illegible]. This extension will give it a twenty [illegible], the terminus being within two or three miles of Oysterville.

[illegible]

The lawsuit between this company, the Ilwaco Railway & Navigation company, [illegible] has finally been amicably settled. The directors had sent one of their number to buy a tract of land at the terminus at Sea Land for $[illegible]. After the sale for [illegible] he saw that it was [illegible] to keep it for himself and refund the company's money. This the company objected to and the lawsuit followed. The controversy has been settled by the director [illegible] the company one [illegible] of the tract [illegible], and everything is again serene.

PHYSICAL CULTURE FOR WOMEN.

The Advent of Miss Mabel Jenness, the Beautiful Sister of Mrs. Jenness Miller.

Miss Mabel Jenness, teacher and lecturer on physical culture, will arrive here to-morrow from San Francisco, where she has had a large class of ladies. It was not Miss Jenness's intention to come to Portland, but Mrs. Jenness Miller, her sister, was importuned by so many ladies to have her come that Mrs. [illegible] gave the inducement required, and now the ladies of Portland will have the opportunity of hearing the young and talented lecturer and also of joining her class. Miss Jenness tells how every woman can make herself beautiful and at the same time acquire perfect health. She wears the garments introduced here by her sister, and is a perfect picture of womanly health and beauty.

POSSIBILITIES.

We have learned in our business experience that the merchants who watch for the things possible and do not attempt the impossible are the successful ones. We found out long ago that it was not among the possibilities to do a long time credit business and at the same time become leaders in low prices. We adopted our motto, "One Price to All," terms strictly cash, and have made friends by the score by adhering to this policy. It gives us the coin to handle large quantities of goods at spot cash prices, and makes it possible for us to give immense "special sales" at which we dispose of vast quantities of goods at prices impossible for credit houses to compete with. Our "Special Sales" have become a part of the history of our house, and are waited and looked for by thousands in the Pacific Northwest. We dispose of more goods at one of these sales than many large concerns would dare purchase. Why is all this? you ask, simply because our "Special Sales" are genuine affairs. We make sweeping reductions and no make believe business. We do you a favor by selling you goods cheap, and do ourselves a favor at the same time by turning into cash at a small profit large blocks of merchandise. As per announcement in our last "ad" we will open the summer campaign by a great

OREGON AGRICULTURE

Our state is undergoing a rapid transformation in some respects and will hereafter assume a position far different from that of the past and more in accordance with modern methods and life in older communities. Many large tracts are being subdivided and many new settlers are locating in every part of Oregon and Washington. All the available land in the foothills is being taken up and very soon farms and homes will occupy every spot suitable for cultivation in the mountain valleys and on the bench lands of the Coast, Cascade and Blue mountain valleys.

Population is pouring in upon us from every direction by land and sea. The world has finally turned its attention towards Oregon as well as all other portions of the Pacific Northwest and the population of this section will undoubtedly receive a quarter of a million increase during 1889. The result of this pouring in of men and capital will be the settlement of all parts of the Northwest and development of its resources. New comers are many of them men of enterprise who will lend an impetus to farming operations and introduce the methods they have practiced in the older states in infusing new life and earnest effort into the agriculture of the country.

Our farmers have shown a commendable spirit and have made steady improvement in farming operations in recent years introducing better methods and more variety in production. The dairy interest especially has been improved and creameries have been established on an enlarged scale. The stock interest has advanced greatly though there are yet too many "scrubs" in the country but the work of improvement goes on and must continue especially under the impulse of increased farming population and improved agriculture. While this improvement has begun well, it must continue and improve under the new order of things.

Many persons during the past two years have purchased small tracts and commenced to make fruit farms and in a few years the orchards of our state will produce enormous crops of fruit and no doubt growers will find a good market for it. New comers will find a good opening in stock raising for while prices may temporarily be low it is a business of such importance that it must be well sustained. Western Oregon should be the breeding ground for fine stock of all descriptions for the far West, and our farmers and stockmen must grade up their herds and flocks to a high degree of perfection if they wish to make the business profitable. It is absolutely true that common stock is only kept at a loss.

The dairy industry offers a wide field for effort and the increased population will create an increased demand. Creameries and co-operative dairying must be adopted with cold storage in addition. There should be large cold storage accommodations connected with creameries and the farmer should own all these establishments, cultivate business habits and so learn to meet the world on its own level and fight his own battles understandingly. There are numerous openings for farmers to venture without leaving their own domain. Small fruits and gardening will become important industries as the country grows more populous and its various enterprises develop.

Twenty years ago there were no cities of importance, few railroads, little enterprise and no openings for farm work save to grow wheat and wool for export. The times are greatly changed and the country and its towns are growing populous and productive while all the fields of labor have expanded beyond the expectations of that period. And this era of progress has but commenced and must go on in increased ratio henceforth. The resources of our region will from this time develop with the result of attracting the world and its capital and the products of the soil will be more and more needed for home consumption.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN BEECHER

The indictment of Herbert F. Beecher for robbing the United States government is a terrible proof of the sham reform of Cleveland's administration. Cleveland appointed Beecher collector at Port Townsend because Beecher's father came to the rescue with his pen of the impeached chastity of Grover Cleveland. The senate refused to confirm Captain Beecher. The committee on commerce to which his nomination was referred thoroughly investigated certain ugly reports affecting the young man's private character and reported adversely [illegible] the charges were fully sustained by the evidence. When it became apparent that Beecher would be rejected Mr. Cleveland withdrew the nomination but subsequently he was appointed special treasury agent and then as the New York Sun (Dem.) states it, he so rearranged the system of supervision on the Pacific coast that the man whom the senate had found unworthy to hold any office of public trust was practically put in control of the business of the Port Townsend custom house. The Sun continues:

[illegible] the government [illegible] opium smugglers [illegible] two years [illegible] Washington [illegible] Blaine [illegible] land [illegible]

NOTE AND COMMENT

President Harrison has appointed E. J. Curtis secretary for Idaho and he was unanimously confirmed. Curtis is now about 60 years old and a good Idaho pioneer who has changed from what he was in 1865 when scarcely more than a boy he was elected to the territorial legislature of Oregon that then was held at Salem. He was a clever fellow always, and went to Boise City in early times. He was territorial secretary through ever so many republican administrations and has grown gray in the service of Idaho. Harrison replaced him as soon as he had a chance to do so. He was a member of the California legislature in early days.

Gray's Harbor will soon be a place of great importance. It is, in many respects, well located to suit a large and important section of country. All of Western Washington between the Sound and the Columbia river will look to it as a port of entry, and direct steamer lines will connect it with all ports and points. It remains to be seen if the resources of that region are sufficient to attract capital, but it is plausible to believe that lumber will be there in immense supply, that coal beds and iron mines are abundant and that fish, clams and oysters will be sources of wealth. There is likely to be a [illegible] pointing toward Gray's Harbor at no very distant day.

It is not known yet how many sorts of parties will be represented in the state convention called for Washington. The two old parties will be on hand as usual and the labor element may seek its strength and secure representation. If labor was organized properly it could [illegible] hold the balance of power. But the labor interest [illegible] It is unfortunate for woman suffrage [illegible] there will be a strong effort made to engraft universal suffrage on the constitution of the new state.

Colonel George L. Shoup, who has been nominated for governor of Idaho, has the good fortune to command the respect of everybody. Shoup is considered a phenomenal sort of a fellow any way. [illegible] Lemhi valley some thirty years ago and as a merchant in Idaho has things pretty much his own way. [illegible]

[illegible] Eugene Semple [illegible] May he run his sawmill as well as he did the government of the territory and may it pay him more coin than his newspaper venture did. There are worse fellows than Eugene Semple and some of them have been governors who did not retire from office as gracefully.

The Chehalis Bee takes to task the Tacoma Ledger for saying there are California quails in Lewis county. The Bee indicates that there are no quails in California. Years ago nearly forty of them the writer drove a team all the way from Portland to Northern California and saw quails along the route in both states. The Oregon quail was a beautiful bird and the company canvassed the subject of quails frequently. While the Oregon quail was not large it became evident that south of the Umpqua the quails were not the same. In Northern California whole coveys of little fellows no bigger than a week old chicken, would dart out of the chapparal and run across the road in single file and a long string of them. Quails were then plentiful there and were small and the common verdict was that they were not the same as the Oregon quail.

Quincy A. Brooks was appointed from Oregon to be collector at Port Townsend. He owned the Hot Springs a little way out of Linkville and expected to realize greatly from the healing qualities of the waters. How he came to be a democrat nobody knows. He was an old time whig but went over to the enemy, perhaps because they were in majority in early times. Quincy Brooks came from over on the Sound to Portland when a mere youth, in 1851. He had a fine touch on a violin. He will remember serenading a young lady who was on board a ship in the river a little over thirty-eight years ago. He drew the bow and another touched up the guitar and several voices made up the choir. Brooks married a sister of Warren Cranston and has a family. Those who were his friends do not like to think him dishonest, but he may have been used by dishonest men to feather their own nests.

The people of Seattle are determined to stop gambling. Chief of Police Mitchell didn't do it, so the mayor and council removed him and directed the police to do it. Besides this action it is said the citizens have raised $1600 to be used to that end in an unofficial way. Matters have culminated over there and something must come of it. Gambling thrives because every other vice is booming. Low saloons and brothels and gambling hells flourish together, and there is literally "hell to pay" where gambling dens thrive and flourish. Young men are ruined as well as young women and every principle and blessing that religion and civilization secure for a community are outraged and over ridden where these vices are permitted. Yet there are human beings so lost to [illegible] and so abandoned to evil that they cultivate vice and live only to be the ruin of others.

Boulanger is said to illustrate several old proverbs. [illegible] certainly [illegible] with slight modification can be made to fit the French refugee. It is borrowed from the immortal lines of [illegible] with a slight verbal change to fit:

He who fights and runs away
May live to fight another day.

[illegible]

Idaho is determined to become a state and Governor Stevenson has called for a constitutional convention to be held at Boise City the first Monday of June A. D. 1889. Delegate Dubois has made a report of the resources of the territory as follows:

The territory contains in round numbers 90,[illegible] square miles [illegible] 58,000,000 acres, of which are mountain [illegible] 14,000,000 agricultural lands, 7,000,000 [illegible] 1,000,000 grazing lands, 600,000 acres lakes. Rich mines of precious metals are hid away beneath the surface of the rugged mountains [illegible] Idaho is greater in area than New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and New Hampshire combined [illegible] has over 1,200,000 acres in the valleys and uplands that can be irrigated and made [illegible] The questions likely to [illegible] If Idaho has sufficient population [illegible] Mormon element is powerful enough to control [illegible] is likely to be [illegible]

[illegible] discussing the question [illegible] judges of the new [illegible] the people of Oregon [illegible] Low salaries were proper enough in 1859 thirty years ago but Oregon has outgrown the conditions. It is impossible to increase salaries to a figure where competent men can afford to accept office unless there are perquisites to increase the pay as in the case of secretary and treasurer. Our judges do not receive nearly as much as good legal ability should earn by practice at the bar. While this is so it is impossible to secure a popular vote to increase the pay of our judges. There are men who appreciate the honor of holding office and who are able [illegible] When it comes to a vote the farmer and laborer say very plainly "We would be glad to earn that much" [illegible] and so they vote the measure down. [illegible] Washington will be apt to take a lesson from Oregon and arrange them on a rather [illegible] liberal basis. [illegible] much longer [illegible] that people [illegible] will tolerate [illegible] in that respect.

Judge T. H. Cann was appointed by Governor Semple one of the four code commissioners of Washington. Tom Cann as he was familiarly known [illegible] Thompson [illegible]

OLYMPIAN VIEWS.

Efforts to Retain the New State Capital on Budd's Inlet

The Constitutional Convention and the Coming Senators—Political Pointers From Seattle—The Landoffice Removal—Etc.

OLYMPIA, April 21.—It is plain to be seen that the Olympians do not intend to leave any excuse for the capital movers to change the location of the capital after the state is admitted to the Union. The old town will look pretty [illegible] a spotted dog under a brand new red wagon when the constitutional convention assembles here on the 4th of July and there will be plenty of room and hospitality for all. A fight to move the capital is always an uphill contest and the framers of the centennial state Colorado (admitted in 1876) saw that the best way to avoid continual [illegible] on the subject was to put a paragraph in the state constitution which read something like this: That the city of Denver be the state capital for five years after the adoption of the constitution and that any change of location after that time must be made by a vote of the people. Perhaps a similar paragraph will be inserted in the constitution of Washington [illegible] Olympia [illegible] the western portion [illegible] large number of voters [illegible] probable that such a proviso would pass.

In five years time, if the present rate of increase continues, Olympia will be a town of [illegible] inhabitants with two or three railroads running into it [illegible] of penalty [illegible]

The citizens are enthusiastic [illegible] the coming events which will bring such a large number of strangers to the capital. Many of them like Governor Moore [illegible] have gone to work to build a hotel between the main street and Budd's inlet. The Hotel Olympia which is to be finished by July [illegible] men were at work on the structure yesterday. It is to contain ninety rooms, 90 feet front by 140 feet in depth and of the latest modern style of architecture. The cost, $[illegible], was secured by subscriptions ranging from $1000 down to $100. Not only are they building a hotel to accommodate the overflow but they actually put up the money to enlarge the territorial capitol and thirty feet is now being added to the rear of that building. This extension will cost about $4,000. New houses are going up—here and there—the finest is that of Mayor John P. Cowey commanding a splendid view of Budd's inlet. John Byrne is also erecting a nice residence. The Knights of Pythias who are to have an encampment and meeting of the grand lodge here on the 8th of May are constructing a temporary temple on the public square where the drill will take place. Two of the oldest residences in Olympia are those of Governor Isaac I. Stevens, killed at Chantilly during the rebellion and Surveyor General Tilton who died some years ago a minor clerk in Washington D. C. All the residences are surrounded by charming gardens. Many of the streets are being graded, extensive improvements are being made to St. Peter's hospital in charge of the sisters and there is a busy bustling air of business and prosperity on every side which indicates that the days of the mossback are numbered.

"What does anybody want to change the capital for?" said a well known official. "Now that railroads and steamboats are annihilating time and space, and it is just as easy to get to Olympia as elsewhere, why not keep the capital where it is? We propose to show the legislators that this is the proper place for it. See the Arcadian simplicity of our capitol, in a grove of evergreens with beautiful surroundings and a vista of mountain, forest and water unsurpassed in America, besides we will have the Port Townsend Southern and the Gray's Harbor roads running into the city probably before another year and Olympia will be a railroad center as well as a steamboat center at the head of navigation on Puget sound. The idea of locating the capital in the middle of the state is an old feudal custom. Many of the state capitals are not in the center of the states. Washington D. C. is not in the center of the country. Why does the national capital remain there? Because it is easily reached and is attractive—and that is just what Olympia is."

"I see that lawyers are being named for members of the constitutional convention almost entirely," said a business man here yesterday. "I shall not vote for two lawyers if nominated on the republican ticket. There will be two candidates only on that ticket in each district and one of them should be a business man in every case. A successful commercial man is just as capable of framing a good constitution as a second or third rate lawyer—perhaps more."

The primaries have been called for Wednesday May 1st and the district republican conventions for the 7th of the same month. While there are three delegates to go from each district no elector can vote for more than two, which secures a minority representation.

Governor Moore said yesterday he hoped to see the best men put forward in the various districts and that the convention would not be dominated by the lawyers. He wanted to see the ablest men of both parties frame a document that would stand the test of time and would be glad to know that the cranky element which [illegible] were always with us would be kept out. With all the experience of [illegible] the constitutional convention there should be no failure to present to the people an admirable constitution [illegible] the new state—in fact one that could be pointed at as a model.

In looking over Jefferson's Manual [illegible] I discover that the new state [illegible] will have nothing to do with fixing the long term or the short term of the two United States senators to be elected from the state of Washington. The [illegible] in joint session elects its two senators. After they arrive at the national capitol and are sworn in they draw lots for the long and the short term. This method of drawing lots was determined upon when the United States senate was first organized nearly a hundred years ago. The senators were then divided into three classes—the service of those of the first class ending in two years, of the second class at four years and of the third class at six years. By this method about one third retire every two years. The custom has been duly honored by its observance ever since the foundation of the senate, and as the next retiring year of the senate is March 4, 1891 the short term senator from Washington goes out on that day and his successor takes his place for six years. The first long term senator does not retire until March 4, 1893 and his successor comes in for six years.

"Who will the first two senators be?" I asked of an Olympia statesman.

He replied: "Let me give you a pointer. The leading newspaper of Seattle is going to boom C. H. Hanford for the United States senate from west of the Cascades and a Tacoma man for governor."

"Who is the Tacoma man?" I enquired.

"Walter J. Thompson," was the reply.

"I thought Seattle favored Ferry for governor and Squire for senator," I suggested.

"Some people favor that ticket but not all of them. A great many will pretend to be the friend of Governor Squire, but at the last moment he will be sacrificed. It is impossible for a ticket to win with a Seattle man for governor with the expectation that the senator is coming from the same place so the leading newspaper sees that the best plan is to get on the right side of Tacoma by conceding to it the governorship and then securing its help for the senatorship. Now watch and see if I am not about right in my predictions."

"I hope to see the legislature a large body—at least 100 members," said a state official, "because that would lessen chances of wholesale bribery, with which all legislatures have been afflicted."

Major J. R. Hayden of this city who has been appointed receiver of the land office at Seattle formerly held the same position in Olympia. That was before a combination of republicans and democrats under Cleveland's administration, caused the office to be removed to Seattle and for which the Olympia republicans will never forgive their King county brethren. Now that the two Southern imbeciles have been removed as register and receiver and two Olympia men take their places perhaps it would be just as well to move the office back to the state capital. It has had a sorry record since Ostrander left it in Seattle.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH

An Arrangement for Dividing the Auditorium Into Smaller Rooms

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—In some respects the most complete of the many new-fashioned churches in the city of Oakland [illegible] is the Methodist Episcopal church which was dedicated to-day. This is the first church on this coast to carry out what is known as the combination plan in full under the [illegible] and directions of its originators. The application of the folding door arrangement to churches is such so that the Sunday school and lecture room, instead of being relegated to a low ceiled and perhaps underground basement shall be on the same floor with the auditorium and of the same size, hight and finish and so arranged with large sliding doors that on occasion the two rooms can easily be thrown into one grand auditorium.

There are separate rooms in the Sunday school room for bible classes and more advanced pupils,

MORE ABOUT POTTER'S CLAY.

What a Practical Potter Has to Say of Oregon Clays.

[illegible] Examined by Him Would Warrant the Establishment of [illegible] Works—Eastern Competition Has Hurt the Business Here

PORTLAND, April [illegible]

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

[illegible] read with considerable interest [illegible] contributions [illegible] THE OREGONIAN [illegible] upon potters clays [illegible] the pottery [illegible] state of Oregon [illegible] a few remarks on this interesting subject.

[illegible]

A few years ago the Oregon Pottery Company [illegible] small pottery plant at Oregon City [illegible] the resources at that point but subsequently found that while portions of the clay had good qualities it was in limited quantities [illegible] would not justify heavy expenditure and for that reason it has been practically abandoned.

The material found at Willamina, Yamhill county [illegible] with some of the qualities [illegible] gray in color but [illegible] be classed among the fire clays.

Some twelve years ago a small pottery was started on the [illegible] but failed because of the poor quality of the material used.

The adage "all is not gold that glitters" might well be applied to fire or potter's clays. Men may delve in the earth and think they have found the coveted prize only to be disappointed when the purifying and trying element fire is applied. Fire clay, like the finest building stone and the more precious metals, is most likely to be found in unavailable places. Especially is this true on the North Pacific coast.

It is a singular fact that the best fire clays on the American continent are found to predominate in a belt between the thirty-eighth and forty-second degrees of latitude and extending from the Atlantic ocean to the Rocky mountains. Good clays are found north and south of this belt but they are more scarce and generally of less value. Another singular fact is that the further north of this belt you go the more fusible the clays, so much so that after passing the forty-sixth degree of latitude little or no fire clays are found. The same phenomena extends towards the equator and for a considerable distance south of that line. The same may be said of the Eastern Hemisphere although the fire clay belt is much wider in extent than on the Western Hemisphere, extending far to the north and south to about the twentieth degree north latitude. These phenomena afford a [illegible] field of thought for theorists and geologists.

The Oregon Pottery Company have several beds of fine [illegible] varied quality and suited to a variety of purposes and are always willing and ready to examine and test [illegible] that may be sent them. It is not for want of material and facilities [illegible] the common wares used in this country are not made here.

For nearly [illegible] years I made practically all the stoneware used in the Northwest [illegible]

Something About Boys Who Wantonly Slaughter The Innocent Creatures—A Cruel Sport

[illegible] small birds in the northwest part of Portland [illegible] average small boy [illegible] mania [illegible] kill [illegible] Much of this wanton destruction [illegible] There are laws to punish those who commit it. Those who sell guns and ammunition to boys should ask them to spare the small birds. The city ordinances impose a fine of $[illegible] for [illegible] killed and [illegible] legislature passed a bill for the protection of small birds.

This spring the song birds [illegible] if the ordinances prohibiting the killing of small birds and the use of firearms within the city limits were strictly enforced by the police the outskirts of the town would be a safe asylum for the feathered songsters.

The small boy of the country is fully as destructive [illegible] The woods are full of them. [illegible] out of season [illegible] the quail [illegible]

... weaker tone than before as buyers seem extravagant in dealings for round lots. ... the new clip it is thought will have to be modified if the seaboard distributing points are expected to carry it.

All grades of raw sugar have again advanced and no immediate source of supply can shake the strong situation of sellers. There are evidently no reserves to participate in the profitable boom while the excited condition of Europe's market has brought out determined buyers from local and adjacent points. Sales of the week include two hundred and twenty two thousand bags. The possibility of remote East Indian sugars which under ordinary conditions cannot be profitably marketed here eventually affording some relief ... but the regular importer can for some time yet regard a rich speculation with composure

VIOLATIONS OF THE FISH LAWS

Who Is Erik Olsen?—The Fish Commissioners Would Like to Meet Him

ASTORIA April 19

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your issue of the 17th inst appeared a letter from one Erik Olsen dated ... Astoria Oregon In connection with the above letter I wish to say that on the 1... inst I received a communication from the governor enclosing a letter to his excellency from this same Erik Olsen in regard to the alleged violation of the fish laws by the ... river fishermen in using small meshed nets. Upon receiving the governor's letter I began making inquiries to find out who Mr Olsen was ... he hailed from Astoria I thought some of the many fishermen here ... knew him but I have failed to find one that does. I have also written Mr Olsen a letter asking him to let me know where he can be found but have received no answer yet

I hope he will show up in the near future ... some of those ... people he speaks of in his letter to the OREGONIAN ... to smell those ... in the meal ... think they will sincerely ... should Mr Olsen prove to have an interest in some of the fish wheels up the river for no doubt they would like to have little bluebacks and small salmon protected on the lower river and let them go up for the wheels to catch. If this should not be the case and Mr Olsen wishes to come before the commission and make complaint against any party for violating the fish law ... will do all they can to have the offender brought to justice

THE COMING CELEBRATION.

The City Will Be Gayly Decorated With Flags and Bunting.

Another Meeting of the Committee Last Night—Reports of Sub-committees—Gen. Gibbon Will Be Grand Marshal.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the celebration April 30th held another ... in the rooms of the Board of Trade last night.

Most of the committeemen were present and the reports of the various sub-committees are very encouraging. The reports ... showed that a great deal of work has been done in making ... and ... that the day to be ... commemorated ... in every respect ...

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting ... reports from committees ... in order.

Mr. Dodd of the finance committee reported that ... had already been ... and that the ... would reach all the way from $4000 to $5000. The latter amount is wanted and can be judiciously spent ...

Colonel McCraken, of the parade committee, ... that General Gibbon had kindly consented ... grand marshal of the day. The general ... his staff. The troops, or ... have also been ... arrangements ... come ... and fully ... ranks.

Mr. ... of the transportation ... from Manager Koehler of the Oregon & California road, an ... the company ... further reduction ... The schedule of fares for the ... trip from ... points on the road has already been published in THE OREGONIAN.

The committee on invitations have about completed their labors. Chairman Holman of this committee stated that invitations had been mailed to about all the civic societies in the city and that numerous favorable replies had been received. If any have not received invitations it is solely due to oversight, and all may consider themselves specially invited guests whether favored with the formality of a written request or not. Letters were read from the following societies who have signified their intention of attending in a body: ... post No 4, Garfield post No ..., George Wright post No 1, Young Men's Institute No ..., Catholic Knights ... sixty strong, and the Portland lodge No 27 A O U W.

The East Portland fire department owing to a want of uniforms will not march in a body, but the individual members have the sanction of the marshal to participate in the parade if they so desire. Chief Morgan of the city fire department, has as yet given no definite answer as to whether the department will turn out and march in a body or not. It is very desirable, however, that they should, and a special committee was appointed to wait on the chief and board of fire commissioners with this end in view.

The committee on decorations, through its chairman, Mr Mooney, reported that the Tabernacle could be tastefully decorated with a little expenditure. Evergreens and bunting will form the principal part of the decorations. Arrangements will be made with the O R & N Co for the use of their flags, thereby obviating the necessity of buying new ones. If sufficient money can be devoted to this feature, the platform will be decorated more elaborately.

In this connection it was reported that a number of First street merchants have concluded to decorate their stores with flags and bunting on an extensive scale. This was considered an excellent feature and appropriately symbolical of the patriotic emotions the day should awaken in all loyal citizens.

It is hoped by the committee that this matter of displaying the stars and stripes will be universal ... the city will ...

A number of appropriations were voted for decorations, bands, expenses of visiting militia and other features of the celebration.

With regard to advertising it was the general opinion that more posters should be printed for distribution. ... informed the committee that about eight or nine hundred posters had been ordered printed by a joint committee consisting of members of the general committee and the regimental ... committee. Three hundred have been sent to the colonels of the regiment to be distributed among the captains of the different companies ... that they are judiciously posted in prominent places. It was thought that ... could be used to advantage. A committee was accordingly appointed, consisting of Messrs. Dodd, Forbes and North ... to have 600 more printed. These posters will be sent out to cities within a radius of 50 miles and tacked up in depots, railway offices and ... conspicuous places.

Colonel McCraken, to whom was referred the matter of securing a hall for the indoor exercises of the afternoon, stated that the Tabernacle had been kindly offered gratis.

While the meeting was still in session a walking delegate from the Bricklayers' union entered the room and announced that the union had decided to turn out in full force for the first time. The union has engaged one of the best bands obtainable and will play no second fiddle to the parade.

The programme for the day, order of the parade, and line of march will soon be announced.

The meeting adjourned until Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, the committee to meet in the same room.

HOME FOR THE ORPHANS.

Work of the Boys and Girls' Aid Society With Homeless and Wayward Children.

The Boys and Girls' Aid society have received an application for a little girl and boy aged respectively ... and ... years in their charge, from a gentleman residing at Island, Jefferson county, Washington. The children are promised a good home and excellent schooling advantages by the gentleman, who has kindly agreed to adopt them into his family. The society have decided to send the children and will make arrangements for sending them to Port Townsend, from which place they will be taken by their foster parents.

Such work as this is being done by the society every few weeks. Homeless children and those being reared in crime and degradation by irresponsible parents are taken to good homes where the influence of proper parental discipline and education will turn the course of their lives and direct their growth and development into true manhood and womanhood.

Officer Woods, special officer for the society, has just returned from a logging camp near Bridal Veil falls with a little girl aged ... and a smaller boy aged 2½ years. The father died some time ago and the mother just recently, leaving the two little ones homeless orphans with none to care for them. The name of the man was Morris, but where either he or his wife came from no one seems to know.

The only clue left was a marriage certificate showing that the license was issued by a court in a small town in Colorado. Efforts will be made to find out whether any relatives are still living at that place. If so the children will be sent to them, but if not, homes will be provided for them by the society.

IT WAS ROUGH ON THE HOGS.

What an Eastern Man Found Out About Black Mud and Pigs' Tails.

Mr. William Kerns not long since had a visit from a friend from the East who wished to purchase land and locate somewhere in this state. Mr. Kerns sent his friend out to look at the Umpqua valley and he returned with a wonderful tale of the section he visited. He said that he visited a farmer who had a great drove of hogs, all of which had lost their tails. He inquired how this had happened and the farmer said the caudal appendages had been amputated and when it was asked why this was done he was told it was to prevent the animals from becoming blind. This startling announcement led to further inquiry and explanation. The farmer stated that the soil on his farm was what is known as black mud. It is very rich, and also very adhesive and the pigs in wallowing around get their tails daubed with it and a clod finally accumulates on each pig's tail which grows by accretion and accumulation to an immense size and becomes so heavy that it drags back the pig's skin so far that the unfortunate animal is no longer able to shut its eyes and soon becomes blinded from the glare of the sun. By cutting off the pig's tails this catastrophe is avoided and the pig soon grows fat. Mr. Kerns's friend did not admire this style of things and is now looking for some section free from black mud.

THE O. R. & N. LEASE.

President Adams's Report on It in 1887.

He Declared It "Highly Advantageous, Both to the Short Line and the Union Pacific, and Gave His Reasons.

The following extract from the report of President Adams of the Union Pacific for the year 1887 will be of interest at the present time in view of the discussion of existing railway relations in the Northwest, viz:

The lease, though defective in certain respects which will be provided for in a supplementary agreement already perfected, has proved highly advantageous both to the Oregon Short Line and the Union Pacific. This may not at once appear in the published reports of the companies. Not improbably the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific may be called upon to meet an apparent deficit between the surplus revenue of the Railway and Navigation company and the rental provided in the lease. It may therefore ... the face of the returns appear that ... a burden rather than an advantage to the two companies. But ... the advantages ... be borne in mind that ... surplus ... themselves ... and fixed charges ... of the ... Oregon ... Navigation ... was to be direct to ... compensate ... the profit ... the most ex... company. While directed over the tracks owned by your company it is because of the distance it is carried and the regularity with which ... can be ... the most profitable ... An examination of the returns of the Oregon Short Line and of the Union Pacific will demonstrate this fact.

The foregoing proposition is one which ... the ... of ... that during the recent investigation ... the United States ... there ... of the Union ... question ... which ... demonstrated ... the great ... burden on the ... returns show that ... a profit over all operating expenses and fixed charges on ... business ... own ... Your ... has already been called to the fact that in the case of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company the bulk of interchanged traffic, both passenger and freight, is hauled 1400 miles over the track of the associated companies. Yet the value of the traffic thus secured to the Oregon Short Line and Union Pacific nowhere appears as a ... item in their ... The same is true, though in less degree, of all the branch lines and connecting lines owned and operated as part of the Union Pacific system. An examination of the several returns of these lines herewith submitted will show that a number of them failed during the past year to earn their operating expenses and fixed charges, reporting an apparent deficit. Yet with the possible exception of the Denver, South Park & Pacific, there was probably no one of them the traffic of which over the main lines of your company did not return to it a profit in excess, and often largely in excess, of any deficit which had to be met. The value of this branch line traffic to the main line, irrespective of all branch line earnings, has in the case of the Union Pacific been recently estimated by the comptroller as the result of careful investigation at not less than $..,000,000 a year.

In view of possible legal question as to the power of the Union Pacific to guarantee the fulfilment of the terms of the lease of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Co. by the Oregon Short Line of January 1, 1887, provision was specially made in the lease for the joint management of the two properties, and Thomas J. Potter was agreed upon as the joint manager for a period of three years from that date. Mr. Potter accepted the position and assumed charge of the two properties as vice president of each upon the 1st of May, 1887. Both companies have ... the advantage of his skillful intelligence and energetic handling. They were operated in complete unison and with a thorough comprehension of all the business conditions ... The ... returns of the succeeding ... months ... the selection to the full extent.

About Boiling Clothes and Disease-Breeding Germs

Dr. H. M. Lassing, in an article in American Analyst, says: "The dirt and all soap must be entirely removed from the interstices of the clothes, and all microbes must be destroyed. The only and easiest way to do this is by heating the water in which the clothes are contained to the boiling point. The boiling water, by constant self-agitation, is forced through the interstices of the fabrics, and thus cleanses them from dirt and disease-breeding microbes as they can be cleansed in no other way, and without in any manner injuring the fabric."

For your Spectacles and Eye-Glasses. It is the only establishment in the Northwest where they are measured on thorough scientific principles. Lenses ground if necessary to correct each particular case. No visual defect where glasses are required too complicated for us. We guarantee our fitting to be absolutely perfect.
